State Colored Teachers Neet

The annual meeting of the Maryland State Colored Teachers' Association was held in the Metropolitan M. E. Church and the Princess Anne Academy Monday and Tuesday of last week.

On the Sunday evening previous an interesting program was rendered in the Metropolitan Church. The educational sermon was delivered by the Rev. W. R. A. Palmer, D. D., and an address was given by Prof. J. Walter

On Monday the exercises were held in the Princess Anne Academy in the morning and in the church in the afternoon. Prof. Herbert S. Wilson, supervisor of schools of Somerset county, was master of ceremonies. An address was delivered by Major Allen Washington, of the Hampton (Va.) Institute. Supervisors of schools from Howard, Cecil, Kent, Charles and Prince George's counties were also present and took part in the exercises. Monday evening Dr. J C. Muerman, of the Department of Education, Washington, D. C., made very interesting address. On Tuesday a teachers' concert was given from 10 m. to 12.30 p. m. After which the meeting adjourned. Mr. Cantwell Held Up And Robbed

Mr. Milton Cantwell, who resides near Princess Anne, while cutting timber on the Rhoads farm last Wednesday morning, was held up and robbed by two masked men. The two men approached him from the rear with the command, "throw up your hands." When he turned around one of the men had a large pistel leveled at his head. They did not utter another word, but took from him $22 in cash, his watch and and men then ran through the woods to the main county road, about 75 yards, and disappeared. The faces of the men were masked and both wore caps. Neither of the men were recognized by Mr. Cantwell.

We do not know whether there are any draft evaders in Somerset county: but if there are, their names will soon be given out by the government in lists published in home town papers. At least that is the information which comes from Washington in the following dispatch:

Draft deserters whose fears have been lulled to rest by more than two years of security from prosecution are about to receive an unpleasant surprise, for the names of 173,911 of them are shortly to be published in their 'home town" sections as a preliminary step to bringing them to a speedy trial.

Mr. H. B. Messenger, of Federalsat his home in Cambridge, Md., at 11 burg, Md., gives the situation in the clock last Thursday morning. He had canned tomato market, from his view,

The crux of the whole situation is the financial condition of the entire packing business.

The packers are too poor to hold the

The packers have been caught by the almost entire failure of the usual sources of supply of funds for making the pack. This caused the extremely small pack and the consequent loss of a part of the tomato crop.

Then, when they were done packing, they could still find no outlet for their goods, and have been able to do so since only to chain stores and a few jobbers who are either in better condition finanernor for the remainder of Mr. McLane's cially than their fellows, or whose sup-

In fact, many buyers who had hoped to get past the first of the year before making purchases are now coming on

Then a large proportion of the very small pack has been sold on account of the necessity of the packers.

Very few buyers have any stock but will be on the market by the first of the year or soon after.

All intend to keep in stock. There is no prejudice against canned tomatoes or the canner, and the demand is sure to be a large one, and the supply is, as is well known, to be very small.

Every packer who can keep his goods until this demand develops is a benefactor to the trade as well as to himself and to his community.

The above statement is absolutely compiled from my own personal knowledge, learned by a careful survey of the entire situation and confirmed by correspondence and personal interviews only too willing to volunteer the intor-mation.

Failure of Senate to Ratify Peace Treaty Leaves United States Technically at War-Presidential Election Holds Interest.

By DONALD F. BIGGS.

The world throughout the year 1920 was passing through the troublesome period of readjustment and reaction that began with the close of the World war. Of all the great powers that had been involved in the conflict, the United States alone remained technically in a state of war with Germany through the failure of the senate to ratify the peace treaty. For all practical purposes, however, the United States was at peace and conditions in this country were more nearly normal than in most of the nations of Europe which had accepted the settlements agreed upon by the peace conference,

Although the great war had ended, growing out of the war resulted in large number of minor conflicts.

The Irish problem remained solved and the situation in the Emerald Isle grew more serious as the year, progressed. In the United States, despite minor radical activities and the uncertainties accompanying the readjustment of business and industrial conditions, there was continued presperity and optimism.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The World war was formally ended January 10 when Germany and fourteen of the powers allied against her in the war exchanged ratifications of the Treaty of Versailles at Paris. The United States, however, was not among the nations participating in this ceremony, as the treaty had not been ratified by the senate.

The League of Nations came into actual being at Paris January 16 when the executive council held its first meeting with representatives from Belgium, Brazil, England, Italy, France, Japan, Greece and Spain participat-

The Russian government made a step toward securing peace with its warring neighbors by concluding treaties with Ukraine and Esthonia. The Turkish peace terms were completed on March 3, and a week later the Allies decided to use force to impose the terms upon Turkey, sending troops to occupy Constantinople. The allied forces occupied the Turkish capital without opposition, Polish troops began a spring offensive against the Russian Bolsheviki in the Baltic region on March 23. Warsaw reported heavy fighting at many points on the 400-mile front. Three days later Poland offered peace terms to Russia, providing for restoration of the kingdom of 1772, return of art and other treasures, and an indemnity for invasions since 1914. Polish troops administered a severe defeat to the Bolsheviki at Podelia April 13.

The Poles and Ukrainians negotiated a treaty on April 27, recognizing Ukrainian independence from Russia. A combined army of Poles and Ukrainians then launched an offensive against the Russian "Red" forces, capturing Kiev on May 8 and the great port of Odessa on May 11.

Bolshevik troops invaded Persia at Astara May 18, forcing the withdrawal! of British troops. Bolshevik troops on the Polish front were re-enforced and launched an attack on a ninetymile front, seeking to open communication with East Prussia. On June 3 they succeeded in flanking and driving back General Pilsudski's Polish troops. The supreme council continued its efforts to complete the peace settlements. Belgium being elected president. On November 29 President Wilson accepted an invitation extended by the Council of the Leagueof Nations to act as mediator between Armenia and Turkey. Two days later the Russia Bolshevik took Erivan and announced the establishment of a soviet Armenian republic. On December 3 Armenia and the Turkish Nationalists signed a treaty of peace.

Several attempts to secure action on amendments to the covenant of the League of Nations were voted down by the league assembly. Because of this action the Argentine delegates to the assembly withdrew on December 3. On December 1 Austria was admitted to the league, the first of the allies of Germany to be granted member-

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

With continual strife, amounting virtually to civil war, in Ineland, with spasmodic revolutionary outbreaks in Germany, with counter-revolutionary movements developing at intervals in Russia, with civil war in China and with political upheavals in France, Italy, Greece and other countries, the unrest and changing conditions growing out of the World war were reflected in the disturbed internal conditions of many countries of the old world in 1920.

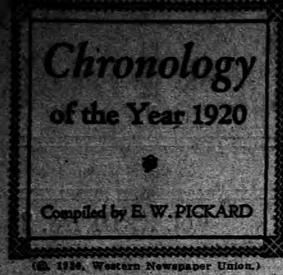

One of the unexpected political developments of the early days of the year was the failure of Premier Clemenceau to obtain election as president of France upon the expiration of the term of President Poincare. Paul Deschanel was elected on January 17 and the following day Cleme cabinet resigned. Alexandre Miller and formed a new cabinet at the request of President Poincare

EAST INDIA SLOW TO CHANGE

Eight Varieties of Marriage in That Region Remain as They Were in Manu's Day.

There are eight varieties of mar-riage in India all of them outlined by Manu the great Hindu lawgiver, and it is not until one comes in contact with such examples of custom that one ealizes how little the native Indian has advanced to meet modern ideas, an exchange says. The eight ways of marriage are:

Brahmya, which consists in a gift of a girl bedecked with ornaments to a learned and virtuous bridegroom who has been invited for the purpose, accompanied by proper religious cere-

Daiva, or gift of a girl decked with ornaments to a priest who is at that time officiating at a sacrifice.

Adsha, or gift of a daughter in conideration of a pair of bullocks given by the bridegroom.

Parajapatya, or gift of a daughter after the father has thus addressed the couple: "May both of you perform your duties together."

Asura, or gifts of a girl after her relatives have given as much wealth

Rakashasa, or forcible capture of a girl after her relatives have been killed

Gandharba, or a voluntary union between a young lady and a man. Palsacha, or the seduction of maiden who is asleep, intoxicated or

Razor Strokes to Shave. There is a barber in London, England, with a nice taste for figuring, and he has computed the number of razor strokes that go to a clean shave. He offers to prove the general correctness of his count on any customer. "You shall keep the count yourself, sir," says he.

The first man counted 150 strokes made by the barber. "Much too low, sir," said the barber. "But knowing you were counting I couldn't help taking longer strokes. It takes more, sir,

His own computation is that, on an average, it takes 200 strokes to shave a man. Now if he shaves so many persons a day, so many days a week, how many times does the barber use his razor a week?"

"'Undreds of thousands, sir," says the barber. Pinned to something more exact, he claimed 288,000 for one week.

The Calm Level.

I have seen the sea lashed into fury and tossed into spray, and its grandeur moves the soul of the dullest man: but remember it is not the billows, but the calm level of the sea, from which all heights and depths are measured. When the storm has passed, and the hour of calm settles on the ocean, when the sunlight bathes its smooth surface, then the astronomer and the surveyor take the level from which to measure terrestrial heights and depths. When the emotion of the hour has subsided, we shall find that calm level of public opinion below the storm, from' which the thoughts of a mighty people are to be measured, and by which their final action will be ined.—James A. Garfield.

Tests for Diamonds.

The true diamond is not cut by file, has a specific gravity of 3.52 and a luster that shows clearly even when the stone is immersed in water. A small drop of water dropped on the face of a clean, dry diamond preserves its globular form and does not spread. When a line is drawn on a diamond with an aluminum pencil, and it is then rubbed briskly with moistened cloth, the line disappears. The commonest test is to draw the edge of the stone over glass; the diamond cuts it without much pressure, while the im-

Thermometer Scales.

There are several different systems of dividing the thermometer scale. The one in common use in all English-speaking countries is the Fahrenheit. In this the boiling point is 212 degrees, and the freezing point 32 degrees above zero. In the Centigrade thermometer the freezing point is takthermometer, the freezing point is tak-en as the zero, and the boiling point is reckened at 100 degrees. It will thus be seen that the 100 degrees on the Centigrade scale and the 180 degrees (212 minus 32) on the Fahrenhelt scale represent the same differ-ence, in temperature namely that be-tween boiling point and freezing point.

The fact that a man's garbage pail is full of good food values does not prove that he can or will give anything to the starving children of Europe.

Some young men who a little while go were singing "How you gon' to keep 'em down on the farm," are now anxiously trying to borrow the railroad fare back home where they have three meals a day...

THAT 1921 SHOULD BRING

Success and prosperity in 1921 depend pon mental attitude. When business slacks up a little some people spend a great deal of time deploring conditions and they relax on their own efforts. Others are bright enough to see that prosperity at any time depends wholly on individual effort and they take hold and work a little harder for their own uccess. If that idea prevails somewhat generally 1921 will be a year of violent, much devastated territory has great abundance. Let the people of been made productive. A careful study Princess Anne do their share anyway.

If the farmer finds his products sell at a low price he should study out new scientific methods by which he can secure a better and more abundant product with less hired labor.

A period of quiet business can be made a time of preparation for increased production and eventually add greatly to the prosperity of the country.

OMMUNISTS EXPERIMENTS

The Pilgrim anniversary celebrations have recalled the fact that these pioneers tried out the idea of the community and state, with the improvements thereon, on the west side of Main street, in Princess Anne, adjoining the land of T. THE YEAR 1920

While 1920 was a disturbed year in business and social relations, yet some definite results have been attained during that period.

1-The scarcities of commodities which prevailed during the year 1919, and were due to the absorption of the people in the work of supporting their armies, have been relieved. This has done a great deal to check profiteering, which always develops where the supply of commodities is less than the demand.

nyway there's been plenty of moon- 2-The inflated price level has been broken and a start has been made to-The hiccough epidemic is supposed to ward getting commodity prices down to a more normal level.

3-Labor troubles have largely subsided. The working masses have been led to see that ample production is necessary to prosperity, and a great many employers have been led into making positive efforts for better co-operation with their help.

4-A hard fought presidential election has been held and a decided result secured. Even those who disagree with the result feel it is better for some one party to assume responsibility and secure a mandate from the people for positive action of some kind.

5-Far reaching movements have be gun to shape themselves among the niddlemen and better marketing of commodities, which must promote econ- sia, and on the following day many mies for all classes. Many other social movements could be mentioned which are laying foundations for a better order and greater prosperity. In Europe many small wars have died down, labor troubles are less of the ground shows it has been a year of marked advance and one whose results will be far reaching.

Some years ago.H. P. Burbage, a student at law in Greenville, S. C., had been troubled for a long while with a persistent cough which he says, "greatly alarmed me, causing me to fear that I was in the first stage of consumption." Having seen Chamberlain's Cough Remedy advertised he concluded to try it. after using two bottles of the small size was permanently cured.

Great pressure had been brought to bear to secure Mayor MacSwiney's release, but the government stood firm in its stand against the hunger strikers.

King Alexander of Greece died on October 25 as a result of a bite by a pet monkey, and it was announced, that the throne would be offered to Prince Paul, third son of former King

Peace in China seemed to be finally assured by a proclamation issued by the government November 1, declaring that there had been a reunion of North and South China and calling for the election of a new parliament.

Fierce rioting between Unionists and Sinn Feiners broke out in North Belfast, Ireland, November 7. Serious disorders were reported also at Londonderry, where five policemen were shot and many ships burned or wrecked. The Irish home rule bill passed the house of commons on its third reading November 11. At Dublin on November 21, following the murder of 14 British officers, a force of troops raided a football game and fired upon the crowd, killing and wounding a large number of persons.

A political upheaval came in Greece with the defeat in the general election on November 14 of the party headed by Premier Venizelos. Premier Venizelos resigned on November 17 and George Rhallis, former premier and leader among the followers of ex-King Constantine, formed a new cabinet.

On December 4 the Greek people, in a plebiscite voted for the return of King Constantine. On December 19' Constantine returned to Athens in

The Irish situation neared a crisis during the closing weeks of the year. Wholesale arrests were made by the British authorities during the last weeks of November, among those taken being Arthur Griffith, acting president of the "Irish republic" and many other Irish leaders. On November 28 Irish plotters set fire to several large warehouses on the Liverpool water front and killed two men. Martial law was proclaimed in south, Ireland on December 10 and two days. later a large part of the business district of Cork was burned in reprisal, 12-14 it was claimed, for Sinn Fein raids,

DOMESTIC The year 1920 being a presidential election year, politics held the attention of the people of the United States during the greater part of the year. Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio vas nominated for President by the publicans at Chicago June 12. The States Supreme court upheld the constitutionme prohibition and the rcement act. On Januwide prohibition, under the eighteenth amendment stitution, went into effect.

On January 10 the New York assembly, with but two dissenting voices, voted to exclude the five Socialist members of that body, pending trial on charges that the platform of their party is revolutionary.

The anti-radical campaign resulted in the indictment of 38 leaders of the Communist Labor party in Chicago on January 21.

The railroads of the country were returned to private operation on March 1, under the terms of the Cummins-Esch railroad reorganization act, Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan was convicted in the federal court at Grand Rapids on March 20 on charges involving the use of excessive campaign funds. He and 16 codefendants were given prison sentences, but remained at liberty pending an appeal to the higher courts.

The trial of the five Socialist memwith their expuision from the legislature April 1. Several suits had been instituted during the early months of the year attacking the validity of the eighteenth (prohibition) amendment. All these cases were taken to the United States Supreme court and on June 7 that tribunal decided that the amendment and the Volstead enforcement act were constitutional.

Big increases in rates were granted the railroads of the country by the interstate commerce commission July 81 to enable the roads to meet increased wages. Passenger rates were increased 20 per cent, with a Pullman surcharge of 50 per cent for the railroads. Freight rates were increased from 25 to 40 per cent in different sections of the country.

The trial of the Communist Labor party leaders in Chicago, in progress; for several months, ended August 2 with the conviction of 20, who were given jail sentences.

The five Socialist assemblymen expelled from the New York legislature in the spring, having been re-elected, were again unseated when the legislature met in special session September 21.

Sharp drops in the prices of cotton, wheat and other farm products brought appeals for assistance from the farmers of the country during the latter part of the year. Night riders appeared in southern states in an effort to force the growers to hold their cotton for a higher price and a movement was started to secure the holding of wheat from the market.

It had been excavated probably about 1700, near the Ports Capens and was taken to the Villa Casall. Seen and noted on more than one occasion during the eighteenth century, the last copyist to mention it was George Zoega, who was established at Blance between 1784 and 1809. After this the relief became lost to the world. It was perhaps shipped home by some traveling Englishman, who placed it in his louse or garden in the St. John's wood region, and thence it found its way to the contractor's yard from which it has now been rescued.

The Firefly's Light. ame and fortune await the scienist who discovers the secret of the amiliar fivefly or lightning bug. No me has been able to tell how the little one has been able to tell how the little insect produces the flashes of light we see twinkling about on dark nights. Careful scientific tests have proven, however, that this light is produced with about one four-hundredths part of the energy which is expended in the flame of a candle. Considering the strength or rather feebleness of the firefly this light is believed to be the most efficient form of illumination today. If this method could be understood and put to work it is calculated that the energy exerted by a boy in that the energy exerted by a boy in driving a bicycle would be sufficient o run a powerful dynamo or light atles of street lamps. Although it is a proven fact that the game now designated baseball is of modern and purely American origin, the use of a ball in ceremonies and games goes back many centuries.

Four thousand years ago, in the twelfth Egyptian dynasty, a Coptic artist sculptured on the temple Beni Hassan, human figures throwing and catching balls. A leather-covered ball used in games played on the Nile over 40 centuries ago, has a place among the many archeological specimens in the British museum. It has a sewed over and is in a remarkable state of reservation.

The game of ball was prized by the Greeks as giving grace and elasticity to the human figure, and they erected a statue to one Aristonicus for his proficiency in it. Ancient medical practitioners were wont to prescribe a course of ball playing, where the modern doctor would order a diet of

It is supposed that ball tossing had a deep symbolic meaning when played in the spring of the year; and that the tossing of the ball was intended the tossing of the ball was intended first to typify the upspringing of the life of nature after the gloom of winter. And, whether this was the case among the people of antiquity or not, it is a remarkable fact that the ecological of the second content of the seco clesiastics of the early church adopted this symbol and gave it a very special significance by meeting on Easter day and throwing a ball from hand to hand, to typify the Resurrection,

"TOTEM POLES" TELL STORY Are Historical Records, and Not, as Many Supposed, Idols to Be Worshiped.

An art in sculpture not resembling any other art in the world, unless pos-sibly that of ancient Mexico, is found highly developed among the aboriginal natives of the northwest coast.

Their material is always wood, and is furnished by huge- trees from the forest, which are carved into the most fantastic shapes. In this style poles," which often of great size and height, astonish the observer by the intricacy of their workmanship and the weird imaginativeness of their complex designs.

Early missionaries, in that part of the world mistook the totem poles for idols. As a matter of fact, they possess no such significance, being merely heraldic columns. Each tribal clan has its own traditions and myths, which takes the place of history, and these are symbolized by the extraor-dinary birds and other animals, sometimes human faces or figures, carved on the totem poles.

Thus the Bear clan will have its heraldic column topped by the sculp-tured figure of a bear. The raven shows up conspicuously as the totem, or crest, of the Raven clan; the whale for the Whale clan, and so on.

To the unversed a totem pole would have no significance beyond its queerness, but it is in reality a whole story carved in wood.

RICKETS DID THIS.

Before this five-year-old Vienna girl was operated upon in the American Convalescent Home her leg was even more horribly deformed from rickets and she was in constant instead of intermittent pain. Now at least her leg is straight again, and by degrees she is relearning to walk. Rickets is the aftermath of under-nutrition, and it is to cut down the harrowing prevalence of such disease as this among the children of Europe that eight American relief organizations are making a joint appeal under the name of the European Relief Council for funds to succor the fillions that face a winter of horror. Children at the Bread Kitchens

Three and a half million children in eastern and central Europe wait, gaunt and pinched like these, at the American kitchens for the flot soup and bread that mean life to them. In the winters since the Armistice, America has been the one friend that had food to give them. It is a common sight in Europe today to see a child five or six years old whose head has not healed. With a healthy well fed baby the skull should close before two years. America must see these children through the rigors of another winter, and to that end eight great relief organizations have combined into the European Relief Council. They seek to raise $83,000,000 to save this generation of Europe from death by starvation and the diseases that come with under-feeding.

PECULIAR FREAK OF NATUE Section of Land in California Has Trees Unknown Anywhere Else, Save in One Small Spot.

Down in San Diego county is grove of Torrey pines less than two miles broad and eight miles long, thinly scattered, that occur nowhere else in the world except about 100 trees on the eastern end of Santa Rosa island, many miles to the north and out in the ocean. All who have read of coaching or motoring in southern California know of the famous cypress drive near Monterey. Strange indeed is this great head of land jutting out into the ocean between Carmel bay and Monterey harbor, for it forms an isolated arboreal island, the Monterey cypress being but one of its peculiarities. The Monterey pine grows there, and is not found again except sixty miles to the north and seventy miles to the south. The Bishop's pine occurs (or recurs) only eighty-five miles to the north and eighty miles to the south. The Gowen cypress recurs on the coast 216 miles

Curious place for trees, this Monterey headland! We have so many tales to tell of curious native trees. however, that one more must suffice. Down at Garden Grove and Santa Ana, both in Orange county, stand five trees that are natural hybrids between the native live oak and the native black walnut, and man had nothing to do with this jugglery.— Los Angeles Times.

GREAT SOLDIER'S KINDLY ACT

Duke of Wellington Not Above Taking Care of Toad Which Was Small Boy's Pet.

The duke of Wellington, while strolling about his estate one day, came upon a small boy, the son of a gardener, down on his knees before a hole, and with tears running down his face. The boy explained that his pet toad lived in the hole, and that he fed him every day the toad knowing him and following him about the garden. School was to open the next day in a distant town, and the lad was afraid his toad would starve to death.

"Not at all, not at all," assured the great leader. "Pil look after your toad myself." The boy got up at once, and the two gravely shook hands. The duke was as good as his word. and went several times a week to the hole with a handful of crumbs, and the toad soon transferred his affection to his grace. This so tickled the soldier that he wrote the boy a letter telling him of the pet's actions, but expressing the belief that when the boy returned the toad would go back to his first affection.

Ripening Fruit.

High temperatures seem, very curlously, to retard the ripening of pears. while hastening that of apples. In experiments described by Overholser and Taylor in the Botanical Gazette, the ripening of green first-crop Bartlett pears raised from 70 degrees F. or room temperature, to 85 degrees was not affected, but at 87.7 degrees it was delayed five days, and at 94 degrees and 104 degrees the delay was 13 days. Second-crop Bartlett pears, in a temperature of 101 degrees, and surrounded by a relative humidity of below 50 per cent, remained unripe four weeks after similar pears at room temperature and humidity had become fully ripened. The flavor of pears kept above 85 degrees was affected, sweetness and juiciness being diminished. The ripening of Yellow Newton apples on the other hand, was hastened at every appreciable rise in temperature from 50 degrees up to the point of destruction by burning. It is concluded that the picking of pears may be delayed in very hot weather, but that the picking of apples and storage in a cool place must be hastened.

An interesting addition to the recent issues of British Colonial postage stamps is the new issue just put into circulation for the islands of St.

Anachronism in Stamp.

Christopher and Nevis, forming part of the Leeward islands in the West Indles. For many years both of these islands have had their individual issues of stamps, but recently they have been combined, the stamp being inscribed St. Kitts-Nevis, the former name being the popular term for the island of St. Christopher. The new issue is practically twice as large as the former stamps, bearing two distinctive designs in oval frames. one being the portrait of King George and the other that of Christopher Columbus on the deck of his ship gazing through a telescope at the distant land. It makes a picturesque an-achronism in the history of philately, for the telescope was not invented for more than a century after the discovery of St. Christopher island by Columbus. The stamp is also the first in the combined issues for these two islands which has borne the portrait of King George.

EQUALITY

American women recently enjoyed, for the first time, the privilege of voting on a national scale. The dream that has inspired womanhood through the ages has been fulfilled.

The Grange conferred this equality upon woman half a century ago. It was the first great national body to grant women the same rights and responsibilities as men. Much of its success has been due to the heed it has given to the deep sympathies, the clear understanding and the instinctive justice of women.

In granting this equality the Grange holds to its purpose of foster. TLEMAN also stands for the fullest ing home life. It always has considered a satisfactory and wholesome home life the basis of all sound citizenship. It realizes the great part woman plays in the making of such home life, and gives her a wider opportunity to display her talents.

The faith and vision that have marked the Grange through the years are undimmed. It offers to farm men and women alike a splendid field for service and improvement.

and finest development of farm life. It seeks to inspire and help by stories of success. It is not alone a magazine of the business of farming and home building, but one of entertainment also. The whole family will enjoy its clean fiction, its cheery "Brighten the Corner" page, its clever jokes and cartoons. A year's subscription-52 issues-is spendid value for $1.00. In the mile square of former Russian barracks in Alexandropol, Republic of Armenia, are housed 5,847 little Armenian orphans under care of the Near East Belief. Every bits they eat, every stitch they wear, is the gift of the people of the United States, through the Near East Belief. In addition, the Near East Belief hospital has a daily average of 1,211 children patients, while 1.049 others are given medical treatment which does not require confinement to hospital beds. Over 54,600 little Armenian children are housed, clothed and fed by the Near East Relief in Armenia and Syria. In all over 110,000 little children are being kept alive by American aid.

Tragic Tale of Harem Victims Sufferings.

More than ten thousand Armenian girls have been rescued from Turkish harems through the help and generosity of America. This is the statement given out by the Near East Relef, which is making the saving of these tragic victims of Turkish cruelty one of the most important features of

That it is a work which in itself justifies the millions that America has spent in this stricken land is testified to by little Miss Eliza Dodurlan, a twenty-year-old Armenian girl recently arrived in this country. Miss Dodurian, through the intervention of American missionaries, was herself spared the sufferings of exile and the horrors of slavery; but she knows all too well the terrible fate of her sisters and friends. It is for them—the soft-eyed little girls of fifteen and sixteen whom last she saw being torn from their mothers' arms and carried off on the saddle bows of the Turkish soldiersthat she makes her plea.

. What their lives have been since then may be guessed by a look into the faces of any of the ten thousand who have passed through the Rescue Homes of the Near East Relief. Their heads bowed in shame, they creep into the American relief stations, trying valuly to hide the tattoo marks which proclaim to the world their story.

Thousands of these girls have been brought back to life and hope through the work of the Near East Relief. It is to rescue the one hundred thousand more still held captive that the Near East Relief is making its appeal this

Charles V. Vickrey Gives Facts of Near East Relief Program for Orphans.

Charles V. Mr. Vickrey considers the need in menia greater than anywhere else in the world, because, as he says, "In the countries of Central Europe there are going governments which have merely been temporarily impoverished by war. In the Near East, on the other hand, there is no such thing as stable government. The whole fabric of the state has to be created from the beginning, and the innocent and helpless children have to be trained to the responsibilities of future citizenship, Peace in the Near East and, in great measure, throughout the world. will depend very largely on the character of the citizenship of the peoples of the Near East."

Irresistible Appeal of Orphans. Describing the orphanage work of the Near East Relief in the Armenian Republic, Mr. Vickrey said:

"We have at Alexandropol in the Caucasus, one orphanage where there are approximately 10,000 homeless children, fatherless or motherless, many of them having no known living relative. Some of them do not even know their own names, or the place of their birth. They have shown wonder-tul recuperative powers, and to see them play their kindergarten or other American sailors to get the sick to games under the direction of our American relief workers, one could never believe that they had passed through the years of suffering that most of them have experienced since they, or their parents, were driven from their homes in Central Turkey five years

I am sorry for these refugees, but we can't help any. They don't want money though they would sell their lives for some clothes and food. They don't stop praising the Americans:

"Trebizonde was another Armenian town, but it was completely wiped out by the Turks, who are now in control of it. The Turks massacred all the Armenians over fifteen years o age and kept all under that age to bring them up as Turks. The city looked as if it was shot to pieces. Samsoun is the same as Trebizonde, so you can see what kind of country we are travelling through. I am sure glad that we are leaving Russia and Armenia because I am sick of what I have seen. 'A NATION SAVED BY AMERICA," SAYS CLEVE AND H. DODGE

New York Business Man Describes Vast Armenian Work of Near East Relief.

Cleveland H. Dodge, New York banker and business man, director of the National City Bank, and treasurer of The Russell Sage Foundation and of the Near East Relief, declares that; "a nation has been saved by American philanthropy, and the generosity of the American people through the Near East Relief, in its work for the Armenians.

"The lowest official estimate indicates that one million persons are living today who would not be alive had it not been for this relief." Mr. Dodge continued, "I have an autograph letter from Dr. H. Ohandjanian, president of the Armenian Republic, in which he writes: 'America literally saved us from starvation.

"Wholly aside from adults who have been saved from starvation, we today have in orphanages and elsewhere under our care 110,000 homeless, fatherless or motherless children who are absolutely dependent upon us. This is exclusive of 63 hospitals with 6.552 beds, 128 clinics, rescue homes for girls and unnumbered thousands of refugees who are being helped through our industrial relief and in other ways.

"The Near East Relief has during the last four or five years commissioned and sent to the Near East more than 1,000 American relief workers, of whom 500 are still in the field, all of them working at great financial sacrifice—the standard of salary being $50 per month and maintenance and many of them facing great personal danger and hardship in the performance of their life-saving service. A score of them have died from typhus or other diseases more or less related ance of relief service.

"Nor is that all. We have raised and disbursed during war times and in a war-torn area, in large measure under enemy control, more than $41,-000,000 in cash, and, including flour, Red Cross and other supplies administered by our agents, a total of cash and supplies in excess of $50,000,000. The official reports show that on June 30, 1920, we had in orphanages 54,000 children, and that we are partially supporting outside of the orphanages 56,039 children, making a tótal of 110,-000 boys and girls now under the care of the Near East Relief."

Mr. Dodge considers the work of the Near East Relief one of the most stupendous undertakings of disinterested philanthropy the world has ever

Methodist Mission Work Described

A picture of world-wide missionary enterprise on a scale making history for Mrs. J. T. Taylor, Jr., Mrs. Ralph P. the Methodist Episcopal Church is presented in a report made public at Chicago last week. The report summarizes bold and Miss Berenice Thompson. The first year expenditures and achievements under the centenary fund recently raised by this church.

In the centenary campaign more than 1,000,000 people contributed to the $108,000,000 pledged, it is stated. Work is being done among foreign-speaking people in the United States by 102 English-speaking pastors, 283 foreign language pastors, 102 women workers and 141 other special workers. There are 225 foreign-language students in training at colleges, universities and schools. The report says centenary funds saved the whole Methodist Episcopal work in China and India from disaster imminent on the great reduction in value in purchasing power of the American dollar. At Singapore $80,000 was spent on the Anglo-Chinese school. Chinese in that city have contributed close to $300,000. Extensive projects have been laid out for Japan and Korea. Twenty-six new missionaries were sent to Africa, marking "an increase of 76 per cent." Physical relief extended to and Armenia ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

OF BIG THRILLS

President Grant, Army Transport, Back in Brooklyn After Nine Months.

Encountered Fire, Storms, Death, Birth, and Strange Adventures in Tropics-Experienced Every Danger Known to Sea.

New York .- Shore-staying people who sadly wag their heads and say that the romance and adventure of the seas went out with the clipper ships had better not express their views in the presence of any of the officers or men of the army transport President

For the President Grant, with her bottom full of barnacles and her sides coated with green moss, recently tied up at Pier 2, Army Base, Brooklyn, after a nine month voyage of some 45,472 sea miles, in which all hands from Capt. John Chambers to the smallest of the Filipino boys got all the adventure they desired, and then some. And Capt. Chambers may be said to be a good judge of adventure, for at 10 he went to sea in a clipper ship, sailed around the world at 19 as boson of another sailing ship, and has seen many strange things and tight squeaks in forty years at sea.

It would be impossible to sum up the doings of the President Grant and her men on the long voyage, equal to almost twice the distance around the globe, but they went through fire, storm, sudden death, births, arctic cold and tropic heat, men overboard, parties, fights, black nights, typhoons, glassy seas and rescue at sea. Off for Vladivostok.

All of this started very prosaicallyto the men of sea—when the President Grant warped out of her pier at Hoboken on the afternoon of February 2 last bound for Vladivostok, the Russian port on the Japan sea. There were 365 officers and men on board, including 20 officers and men of the army, most of whom were of the medical corps. The former liner is a vessel of 18,072 tons and is 599 feet long. Before the ship was half way across the Pacific the officers and crew were to be thankful for every ton of weight and every foot of length, but this is anticipating the story. Captain Chambers was on the bridge, the chief officer, H. L. Jones, was busy straightening things out all over the ship for a long voyage, and down in the engine room Chief Engineer A. E. Brock was grooming his 7,500 horse-power engines for the long and trying task ahead of

Just by way of showing that a sailor's life is not always as perfect as pictured, Chief Officer Jones was leaving behind his bride of one month. He was happy that he had the mountain of work that falls to the executive officer of a ship to take his mind off his troubles.

The primary purpose of the voyage was to transport Czecho-Slovak troops from Vladivostok to Trieste, Italy, after their long, hard Russian campaign. The ship was not idling on her way over, however, for she had stowed away in her after holds 5,000 tons of steel rails, beams and plates, which she was carrying for the shipping board to Japanese ports.

Pine weather and smooth seas attended the first leg of the passage, down the American coast to Colon, at the entrance of the Panama Canal. The port was reached after a run of eight days, and the big locomotives pulled the ship through the locks and out the other side in seven hours and twelve minutes. Eleven days and eleven hours more of steaming at the ship's regular gait, which was almost always between eleven and twelve knots, brought her through the Golden Gate at San Francisco on Washington's birthday, February 22.

Two Men Die in Fire. After five days here to take on coal and supplies the President Grant steamed out on the Pacific crossing. She swung out northward toward colder climes on the northern great circle route. Before she sighted land she encountered three very heavy gales during which from ships all about her she heard profane radio comments on the weather which was forcing them to lie to or steam off their courses. The President Grant, however, was a liner and she kept right ahead on her eleven knot speed reless of the big swells of the misnamed Pacific. Twice she halted for short periods for Chief Engineer Brock's men to make repairs in the

While far from land a fire, one of those mysterious conflagrations which break out occasionally at sea, developed in hold No. 1, forward. There was only a quantity of life preservers in this hold, but the dense smoke that billowed out made things look bad. In aghting this fire Boson's Mate Edison was suffocated in the hold. Ordinary emen Ray went down through the hoking fumes in a gallant effort to teath. The hold was flooded and the Sunday, November 20. The voyage after crossing the Pacific in sevenceen days, nine hours. There the liner lay twenty-one days discharging cargo and here the crew received generous shore leave, as they did everywhere else throughout the voyage, enabling them to visit many cities and localities rarely seen by seamen.

Chance to See Strange Cities. On March 17 the President Grant

More cargo was discharged at Kobe, the next Japanese port of call, where the ship stayed eight days. After passing through Tsugara Straits in foggy weather the ship came safely to Vladivostok, arriving April 22.

Here the President Grant took on board 5,437 troops and sailed for Trieste, ploughing through tog and rain to Hongkong, where a stop was made for coal and supplies. Singapore was reached May 12, and after skirting Sumatra and entering the Indian ocean, the President Grant stopped at Colombo on the Island of Ceylon. A stay of five days was made here.

There was fine weather and glassy seas on the trip across the Indian ocean, but in the Red sea the temperature rose to 102 degrees and the uniform of the day in the fire room was one pair of light sandals.

A Ride on the Camels.

At 10:25 a. m. on June 4, the ship entered the Suez Canal and reached Port Said on the Mediterranean sea the next day. While in this part of the globe members of the crew had an opportunity to try out the camel as a means of locomotion. In Ceyion they had tried elephants, and in China rickshaws, and at Venice, which they visited after the ship reached Trieste, they tried gondolas. The arrival at Trieste was on June 12, more than four months after the start of the voyage.

At Trieste orders were waiting for another shipment of Czech soldiers, so after twelve days in port, the transport steamed on the back trail. At Port Said she caught the United States army transport Crook, just sailing for Trieste, and hastily transferred to her five stowaways who had crept on board at the Adriatic port Colombo was reached July 16, after passing through southwest monsoons and heavy seas in the Indian ocean. On July 21, after five days at Colombo for repairs to be made and supplies taken on, the ship steamed eastward, and nive days later anchored on a very dark night at the entrance to the narrow and crooked Singapore straits. Next morning the ship proceeded toward Manila, hugging the coasts of Borneo and Palawan to avoid typhoons. Manila was reached August 1, with the crew all very busy painting and cleaning the ship in preparation for her next load of passengers. On August 5 the ship steamed for Karatsu, Japan, for coal, but next day halted at the entrance to Subig Bay to land six stowaways who had secreted themselves on board under the decidedly mistaken impression that they would be rapidly transported to the United States.

Rescue Japanese Fishermen. A few days later the President Grant sighted a motor launch of about 80 feet in length drifting helplessly over the Pacific swells with a signal of distress hoisted. The transport hove to and lowered a boat. The men on the boat were Japanese fishermen, who said their fuel had given out and they had drifted for five days. They were given enough gas to take them back to Nippon and the President Grant proceeded, reaching Karatsu August 10. After five days of coaling the transport steamed toward Vladivostok, reaching the Russian port for the second time on August 18.

There 5,874 troops under command of Gen. St. Cecek, were embarked and the President Grant headed into the rough seas and southwest monsoons of the Sea of Japan and the China sea. Hongkong was reached September 2 and Singapore six days later through much rough weather. Ceylon was touched once more and the Indian ocean, Red sea and Suez canal passed without mishap. When Port Said was reached, October 6, the canal authorities ordered the ship moored in the African basin, against the protests of both Captain Chambers and the American consular agent. When the tide fell the big ship went aground aft. Captain Chambers ordered coaling stopped and water tanks pumped out. The ship was pulled ahead by its anchors into deeper water. Fortunately the bottom of the basin was soft and the ship apparently suffered no dam-

After two days at Port Said the ship left for Trieste, reaching that port October 13, This second voyage with troops was made novel by the presence on board of 600 Russian women, wives of the Czecho-Slovak soldiers, and a number of babies. Three babies died on board and two were born.

Home Again at Last.

A terrific storm arose while the transport was moored to a dock at Trieste and for three days the ship was held with great difficulty. Ten or eleven lines and eight mooring wires held her safely, but the mooring bitts on the port quarter cracked and one of the wires parted.

Then came the time the crew, and more particularly Chief Officer Jones, was looking forward to-casting off on the last leg. On October 23 the President Grant, homeward bound, sailed from Trieste with 2,000 immigrants on board. She passed easily through the Mediterranean, bucked a storm lasting four days in the Atlancame to an end officially when, at 10 a. m. Monday the big liner warped into Pier 2, army base, Brooklyn, tied up and slapped rat guards on her lines. rescued from the sticky water.

PRINCE STIRS HIS BROTHERS

Wales' Travel Stories Rouse "Wanderlust" in Other Members of Family.

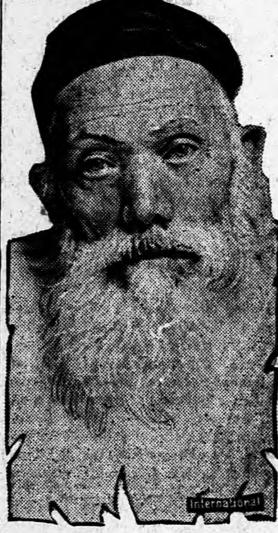

London, England.—Enthusiastic accounts given by the prince of Wales in the royal family circle of his experiences during his recent empire trip are said to have raised a keen desire on the part of his brothers, Princes Albert, Henry and George, to go on similar voyages.

The prince of Wales is reported to be writing a preface to a book of photographs taken during his trip, which will be sold for the benefit of a blind soldiers' hospital.

Since his return to London, the prince has been giving a series of small dinner parties to his intimate friends at St. James' palace, which is now pretty well stocked with souvenirs of his tour. He is considered an excellent host and he has a fund of amusing anecdotes about his experiences abroad.

He is fond of playing rackets and swimming at the fashionable Bath club, off Piccadilly. A keen follower of the chase, he has recently bought several new hunters, and he is keeping up family traditions by accepting the chairmanship of the West Norfolk hounds, a position which his grandfather, King Edward, held for many years. He is also coming to the fore as a cattle breeder. At the recent Birmingham cattle show he took three prizes with three heads of Aberdeen Angus cattle from his Dartmoor farm, near Princetown.

DANISH COAL IMPORTS GROW

American Dealers Send 274,390 Tons of Fuel to Denmark in September.

Copenhagen.-There has been a steady increase of imports of American coal to Denmark throughout the year. This has been a dominant factor in the coal market here. Beginning in January with a few hundred tons, the American coal imports-in September—reached 274,390 tons.

Meanwhile imports from Great Britain fell during the summer to about 85,000 tons, but rose in September to 164,000 tons. Little coal was imported from Germany, and this entirely stopped in October.

Some Danish coal dealers say that the quality of American coal has been so good as to compensate for the higher freight rates as compared to coal imported from Great Britain, but that this quality of late has fallen off.

ENGLISH BIRTH RATE IS 18.5

Total in England and Wales Last Year Was Far Below That of 1903.

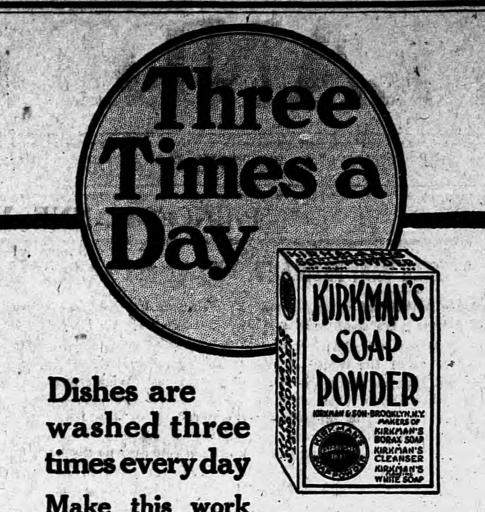

London, England.-The number of births recorded in England and Wales in 1919 was 692,438, including 41,283 illegitimate, a birth rate of 18.5 to each 1,000, of the population, says the annual medical report of the ministry of health.

In 1903, a record year, there were 943,271 births, or more than 250,000 greater than last year.

TO HUNT SEALS WITH AIRSHIPS

Newfoundland Government Will Send Out "Blimps" to Scout Waters for Herds.

But Await the Experiment With Anticipation and Hope of Greater Profits Than Ever Before-Presented by England.

St. John's, N. F.-Captains of the Newfoundland sealing fleet look forward to a big "kill" among the seal herds this season under the arrangement by which the fleet will be guided by two airships, whose duty it will be to act as scouts, search for the herds of young seals and send word of their location by wireless.

Some of the old captains profess to be a trifle dubious of this new-fangled method of hunting the seals, but they are all awaiting the experiment with anticipation and hope of greater profits than ever before.

"Blimps" to Be Used. The two nonrigid airships, popularly known as "blimps," which are to be used in this work have arrived here and are being assembled to make this first attempt to hunt seals from the air and by use of the wireless. The expedition, which altogether includes four airships, is under the command of Frank J. Tippen, consulting airship engineer and constructor to the Newfoundland government, an expert in the design of large commercial airships. Three of the four airships are of the sea-scouting type, driven by a single engine, the kind which did valuable reconnaissance work over the North and Irish seas during the war. The fourth is larger and driven by two motors.

Presented by England. All these have been presented to the Newfoundland government by the British air ministry as the nucleus of a regular government air patrol service in Newfoundland. After the experiment in seal hunting they will be used as a matter of routine in the forest patrol and survey work.

The party includes two airship piots, of whom the chief is Capt. Williams, who distinguished himself in the war as a pilot in airships over the Irish sea. The airship station in Newfoundland will be established at Botwood on the Exploits river, where the wireless station will be built to keep in touch with the airships.

Will Locate Seals. When the vast herds of young seals come drifting down from the north on the ice early in the spring the "blimps" will fly out over the North Atlantic, will hunt them out and send word of their location to the sealing fleet waiting to kill them for their oil-bearing fat and skins. Heretofore a big "kill" has been the matter of luck as well as of good judgment. The sealing fleet has relied mainly on the knowledge and skill of certain skippers who study charts and currents and estimate where the herd may be found, but sometimes they have missed their object. Next spring, however, it is hoped here that the airship patrol, preceding the fleet and scouting over the immense area of water, will convert what has hitherto been a gamble into almost a cer-

CROWN JEWEL IS IMITATION

British Custodian Is Trying to Solve Mystery When Stone Was Substituted.

London.-Sir George Younghusband, keeper of the jewel house at the Tower of London, has just revealed the fact that one of the British crown jewels, of which he is custodian, is an imitation. The stone was believed to be a magnificent aquamarine, but proved on examination to be only a piece of colored glass. It figured first in the crown of King James II. The mystery of when imitation was substituted for the real stone has not been solved.

Killing Bee Spoiled.

Seymour, Ind .- Citizens of this town had visions of a killing bee with bank robbers as victims, when the burglar alarm went off at the Jackson county bank. They surrounded the institution and waited five hours for the yeggs. Then it was found that the vault has been improperly locked and the batteries did the rest.

BIG RANCHES ONLY MEMORY

Progress of Civilization Has Done Away With the Picturesque Life of the Old West.

The big horse ranches have virtually gone out of existence with the passing of the Long X in Montana, says the Christian Science Monitor. The big cattle ranch long since succumbed to the onward march of the sheep ranger and the wired fence, and it was felt to be only a matter of time before the horse ranch would

In this connection it is interesting to recall the circumstance that though the horse was unknown on the American continent when the Spaniards arrived, prehistoric evidences of the animal have been discovered in both North and South America. The Indians, who had domesticated the llama, the alpaca, and the dog, knew nothing of the horse, and were astonished by the sight of the strange and unfamiliar animals which the newcomers rode. Yet, with their introduction by the white races, horses which escaped soon ran wild and flourished on the same ranges where their ancient cousins had apparently lived, showing how well the country was suited to their needs. There are a few ranches today in the West where the rug in the principal room may be the hide of a wild horse, found in Nevada or in Arizona canyons.

Orchid Hunting Profitable. Orchid hunting is a business that engages the efforts of many courageous adventurers, who explore the wildest and most remote parts of the world in the hope of finding rare or new varieties. Success in this kind of enterprise may bring large reward, inasmuch as a single plant may have market value of thousands of dollars.

How's This? We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Hall's Catarrh Medicine has been taken by catarrh sufferers for the past thirtyfive years, and has become known as the most reliable remedy for Catarrh, Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the Blood on the Mucous surfaces, expelling the Polson from the Blood and healing the diseased portions.

After you have taken Hall's Catarrh Medicine for a short time you will see a great improvement in your general health. Start taking Hall's Catarrh Medicine at once and get rid of catarrh. Send for testimoniais, free.

RULED KING IN SUCCESSION

Three Sisters of Noble Family Who Became the Favorites of Great French Monarch.

King Louis XIV of France fell in love with three sisters, one after the other, the daughters of the marquis of Nesle. The first was not a beauty, but she was a clever woman and a good dresser. Her reign ended after three years, when her younger sister appeared. The king's devotion to the first sister was a secret until Louis, after indulging too heavily in champagne, paid a call upon his wife, who was so disgusted by his condition that she ordered him to leave her presence. He was bitterly angered, and a few days later he publicly acknowledged his devotion to Mme. de Mailly.

Her younger sister, Pauline, came to the palace with the firm intent of winning the king from her sister She did, but died suddenly shortly after her success. Then the third sister, Marie Anne, the young widow of the marquis of Tournelle, the most able, the most unscrupulous and the most beautiful of the family, appeared. Mme. de la Tournelle, in love with a young nobleman, refused to listen to the king. Louis sent his rival to war, but the young man came back wounded, and a hero. A young woman of great beauty was instructed to woo the king's rival, which she did so effectively that his passionate letters to her were sent to the king, who promptly showed them to Mme. de la Tournelle.

This crafty plot was successful, and the ambitious favorite, after insisting that her sister should be sent away, was given an official place at court and the title of the duchess of Chateauroux.

Evil in Deception.

Lying, a term in which we include deception of every kind, is the root of more evil in the world than the love of money ever was, though the latter is responsible for enough, in all conscience, and the two evils work handily together. If frank honesty were the rule of the world, boys, grown into men, would sin occasionally, but not frequently or continuously, as many of us do now. Deception is the great protector of crime, the great shield of vice. Eliminate it absolutely and you sever the tap roots of profiteering, defrauding of the employer, impurity, hypocrisy in the church, political corruption and wars of aggression.—Exchange.

THE PRESENT DAY CRIMINAL

Formerly many criminals put up more of a bluff than they meant to carry out. They might threaten their victim with a gun, but frequently they had no intention of using it and it might not have been loaded. But the desperate villians who have carried out the recent carnival of crime all over the country are ready to shoot and have a contempt for

The general way of accounting for this brutal spirit is that these fellows served in the war. There killing was an every day matter and they became perfectly indifferent to it. Yet the man who will attack a defenceless fellow citizen and rob him of his honestly earned money on threat of killing him, is so low a skunk that it is difficult to regard him as a product of military training with its splendid discipline. But the army took in all kinds of men and some of them had black hearts to start with, which grew no whiter in the trenches.

War promotes disregard of human life among many people who are not solliers and many yellow draft dodgers no doubt acquired more of this spirit which they already had in considerable measure. Perhaps the greater part of the Banks and Bankers and Trust Compresent criminal element comes from this class. The country faces an irruption of the boldest and most wicked characters that ever showed their heads in this free land. They do not know the meaning of mercy and regard it only as a weakness. The only way to deal with these miscreants is to soak them

PARTY REGULARITY

What is required of a man to class himself as a Democrat or as a Republithe party sense? Must be support every candidate of his party at every election? These are questions that are being asked at this time when the office-seeker is abroad in the land and needs a party label to land something worth while.

In the campaign of 1912, over 4,000,-000 Republicans left the party and supported Theodore Roosevelt. a New Cook Stove

It's a waste of time and energy to try to cook and bake with the old-fashioned cook stove—and. worse still, an actual waste of fuel. The modern kitchen stoves and ranges are marvels of efficiency, economy and convenience in comparison. They make cooking and baking easier, cheaper and more uniform.

We have them in the best makes-for small families and for large—with coal or wood grates-malleable, rust-proof and with the latest inventions and attachments.

We are always glad to show our stock and to point out the features that make ours the best.

TREASURE IN NORTH AFRICA

French Writer Declares Land Is a Storehouse of Historical and Archeological Beauties.

North Africa-Morocco, Algeriacomprises, according to Louis Bertrand, writing in L'Illustration (Paris), a storehouse of historical and archcological treasures unsuspected by the great majority of Frenchmen. France's tricolor floats over these storied lands washed by the Mediterranean.

M. Bertrand concludes that most of his countrymen visit the colonial possession much as they would visit a spectacular review or something of sort, as a dizarre experience of strange sounds and colors and muscle dancers; whereas, if they would but open their eyes, they might behold dead cities raising up their heads and almost hear the echoing footsteps of. for Booth's father to practice law, the Roman legions. He points, in fact, to North Africa as the richest museum of Latin antiquity in the world, where the ruins of the imperial occupation are thickly strewn for leagues, crying out for the pick and spade of the excavator. "From Volubills in Morocco to Gigthi in Tunis," declares the writer, "on a line 2,000 kilometers long, the Roman ruins are landmarks in Africa. With their triumphal arches, colonnades, pagan temples, basilicas and Christian burial places, they outline a shattered royal road without a peer."

Challenge to Thought.

When you can't do what you want to it's a challenge to think. If you can't do it, why can't you? The chances are you will find it is not right that it should be done at all. Or it may be that you are not the one to do it. You may want to swim the Niagara just below the falls so you can boast of doing what has not been done. You may want to fly to the moon so you can write of experiences never yet felt by man. You may even want to play the Jonah game so you can give your experiences of a few days in the deep. But you can't do it. The why Hes in the fact that you are not made for such exploits. To attempt any one of them would be to tempt selfdestruction. The crowd might stand by and watch you make the effort and when you failed they would call you a fool. When you can't do what you want to-think .- Grit.

Washington at Forty-four. The authenticity of a portrait of Washington at forty-four by John Trumbull, painted on a mahogany panel eight by ten inches in size, has recently been established under peculiar and interesting circumstances, writes William H. Shelton, curator of the Jumel museum, in the International Studio. This picture has hung in the museum of Jumel mansion for six years in the collection of William Lanier Washington.

The head is interesting as showing Trumbull's recollection of Washington at forty-four, and his recollection was seconded by pen drawings made while on his staff in 1775. General Washington was forty-three years of age when he took command of the army at Bos-

Expected It White.

"Americans traveling for the first time in Europe," said Senator Brandegee at a Hartford dinner, "display provincial crudeness in many ways, but the faux pas a Boston leather profiteer made in a fashionable Parisian restaurant was pardonable. Thanks to prohibition he was quite uninitiated in the matter of table wines-he had made his pile after we went dry.

"Holy smoke, waiter,' this profiteer exclaimed haughtily. 'Look what you've brought me-yellow wine when I asked you for white!"

Hush Money. Caller-Well, you are a good little boy. Are you always as quiet as this? Johnny-No; but mother's going to give me a quarter if I don't say anything about your bald head.

JAPANESE AVERSE TO CHANGE

Idea That They Would Take Kindi to American-Built Houses Proved

With the double hope of business ccess and social service, a certain firm in Japan some years ago began the importation of American-made movable houses on a large scale. The houses, the firm believed, would offer very comfortable and cozy little homes at reasonable prices to the salary-earning classes of Nippon and would bring about a great improvement in the domestic life of the Japanese.

The enterprise, well-meaning as it undoubtedly was, turned out to be a failure. It was like an overzealous but enlightened missionary trying to impose the dogmas of Christianity on heathens, regardless of the latter's ideas, temperament and history. The Japanese have their own customs, modes of living and traditions, which, irrespective of whether they be good or bad, are dear to their hearts and hard to give up in a fortnight. Homes are the most basic of institutions, and house construction is the result of centuries of home life to a nation. To try to induce the Japanese to give up their houses immediately and dwell in the American-made houses is like trying to urge them to give up all Japanese ways of feeling, believing and thinking, and to adopt occidental ways of behavior. It is preposterous.-East and West News.

MEMENTOES OF GREAT ACTOR

Diary of Junius Brutus Booth and Other Interesting Relics Are Found in Old Theater.

Diaries and relics of Junius Brutus Booth, famous in the annals of the American stage, were brought to light by wreckers working on the reconstruction of the famous old Walnut Street Theater, at Philadelphia, Pa., the oldest playhouse in the United States.

Away up in the eaves, and there was no evidence to show how they were put there, were two big hampers of wicker, falling to pieces from age. The theater's manager had a ladder put up, and he and a workman started to as-

The ladder broke and the workman pers, when finally brought down, proved well worth the trouble.

They were full of oldtime costumes, a diary of the famous actor, a license signed by the king of England, and a collection of old playbills and programs that are invaluable today.

Alongside the hampers, resting across two beams, was a big, thin slab of marble. It was found to be a lithograph stone on which were made the pictures advertising John Sleeper Clark.

Arc and Microscope.

Before the Royal Microscopical society in London there was described a method of photographing objects magnified by the microscope. The light of the electric arc itself is employed, that of the incandescent lamps being shielded; the light itself is filtered, and thus a powerful monochromatic light, at the extreme limit of visibility, is obtained.

With this light excellent photographs of minute objects, under a magnification of 2,200 diameters, were made and exhibited upon a screen. The experimenter suggested that lenses specially corrected for the ultra-violet rays would enable photography to do for the microscope what it has already done for the telescope.-New York Evening Post.

Peanuts Gain in Popularity. More than 2,000,000 acres in this country were planted with peanuts last year. The demand for them is increasing by leaps and bounds. They are one of the most nutritious foods known to man, one pound of them (shelled) containing nearly half a pound of fat and a quarter of a pound of protein, both high grade and readily digestible. For running the body machine they are three times as efficient as an equal weight of beef and five times as efficient as an equal weight of eggs. Peanuts yield a sweet, wholesome cooking oil. A bushel of them in the shell will produce a gallon of oil. Many lard substitutes now sold and popular are peanut oil converted into a solid fat.

May Combine Languages.

It will be of interest not only to students of philology in general but to anyone who has wondered why Norway, Denmark and Sweden waste no much time through having three different languages to know that Adolf Noreen, long professor of philology at Upsala, has started a movement to bring the three languages more closely together. His task is stupendous, but since he is a philologist himself he may usher in the day when a drama written by a Dane can be played in Stockholm without being translated.

The Variously Valuable Shark. Sharks are now prized for their skin by manufacturers of shoes and leather articles. Special seines have been constructed with which to catch the man-fish, and as many as 200 a day have been captured. One hide, says Experimental Science, will produce 10 to 40 square feet of leather. The liver of the shark yields upon boiling with water a valuable oil, used in making glue, soap, paints and medicines. The meat is white, resembling halibut, and is edible.

LIFE SAVED BY PLUNDERERS Badly Wounded Boldier Owed Recov-ery to Cupidity of Ghouls Who Had Stripped Him.

It was at the battle of Edgehill, fought Oct. 23, 1642, that Sir Gervase Scroop was found upon the field to all appearances quite dead. This was on Sunday afternoon, when the battle took place, and it was not until the following Tuesday that Sir Gervase's son found the body of his father. When discovered it was entirely naked, having been stripped by camp plunderers. The body was also covered with wounds, sixteen of a major nature being counted. Being brought from the field, efforts were made to accomplish what appeared hopeless resuscitation. Rubbing was tried and after a long time a faint warmness pervaded the supposed corpse, finally resulting in voluntary movements of the limbs. Sir Gervase recovered completely and lived for ten years after what was considered almost a miraculous revivication.

The doctors were of the opinion that he owed his life really to the brutal indifference of the robbers, as the coldness of the nights had coagulated the blood and prevented him from bleeding to death. Had he been brought off the field, they said, and put in a warm place he would undoubtedly have died owing to the fact that he would not have received proper attention, but which circumstances provided.-Chicago Journal.

WONDERS OF HUMAN BODY

More Complex and in Greater Harmony Than Any Manufacturing Plant Possible to Imagine.

We engineers are apt to forget that the human body is the most wonderful work of engineering in the world. As a plant it is more complex than the largest works in existence, John H. Van Deventer writes in Industrial Management. Take the digestive tract. the lymphatic system, the framework of bones, the innumerable muscle motors, the co-ordinating functions performed by the liver, kidneys and other internal organs. And to go a step further, take the sensory departments. How about the wonderful optical plant in which colored moving pictures are instantaneously taken and developed? How about the phonographic department where the sound vibrations are received, recorded and reproduced? And the sense of touch so delicate that the fingers can be trained to feel flat spots on a steel ball which are not apparent to the eye? Think of the thousands of functions performed simultaneously, the routine ones automatically and those requiring judgment being cared for at the same time through other channels. You will agree with me surely that the body contains the most elaborate organizations ever installed in any plant; that its component parts are examples of a finer kind of design than we will ever approximate and that the functions and their relations are coordinated more smoothly than we will ever be able to arrange human relaIndigestion

Many persons, otherwise vigorous and healthy, are bothered occasionally with indigestion. The effects of a disordered stomach on the system are dangerous, and prompt treatment of indigestion is important. The excellence of the ancient writers does not consist in a trick that can be learned, but in a perfect adaptation of means to ends. The secret of the style of the great Greek and Roman authors is that it is the perfection of good sense. In the first place, they never use a word without a meaning, or a word which adds nothing to the meaning; they knew what they wanted to say, and their whole purpose was to say it with the highest degree of exactness and completeness, and bring it home to the mind with the greatest possible clearness and vividness . . . The ancients were concise because of the extreme pains they took with their epithets: almost all moderns are prolix because they do not. The great ancients could express a thought so perfectly in a few words or sentences, that they did not need to add any more.-John Stuart Mill.

"But, Billy," she said, "You have.

never been serious in your life; how can you expect me now to believe-" "Seriousness has always been there," Billy replied, cheerfully, "though apparently lying dormant." The fact now is that I love a woman and want desperately to win her for my wife. And if I thought that I could do it-Gosh!" ended Billy, expressively, his features expressing the forlornness of this possibility.

"Well," hummed Patty, airily, "Why don't you try? Why don't you try?" "Have tried," Billy gloomily responded. "Don't seem to make any impres-

Patty studied her old friend appraisingly. It seemed strange to think of Billy as a friend; he was usually referred to as her "admirer." Calmly Patty had accepted that implication; an admirer more or less meant little to Patty. They stood "up in rows," her young brother said, "to be selected from." Billy had just been one of the row. But now, it appeared, all Billy's admiration was centered upon another girl ,and he was merely a

"Any suggestions to make, concerning the siege?" he asked. "You ought to know a girl's heart pretty well, Patty. How does one go about taking it captive?"

"Nice of you to ask my advice," she drawled, sweetly, "but if you don't know your own girl's heart, Billy, how can I be expected to?". The young man arose. His face had lost its bright hopefulness. "Well, I'll be going," he said, slowly. "Anyway, I thought you'd be interested to know the truth."

He turned back abruptly. "Won't you give me your hand and wish me success?" It was a cold little hand that Billy held. The next moment he went swinging down the path. Patty's cheeks were burning crimson as her cape. All at once it came to her that Billy realized her own mistaken reading of his past devotion and was sorry.

In all her gay young life the girl had never known the strange desolation of the present enveloping her like the shadows. Billy had been a name to conjure with-Billy always nearby to smile at over the shoulder of some other swain; Billy to call, when evenings were long and one too weary to entertain. One was always sure of understanding from Billy. Billy, who himself could amuse, never too weary to read aloud, or to sing, while she, the selfish Patty, would sit dozing near the fire.

Now-Billy was in love, and Billy was going to be married! Of course no girl could be adamant enough to refuse him. Then she, Patty, must lose him forever. The loss of Billy would be an overwhelming thing. How could she get along without him?

At this point Patty cried. The couch cushions smothered her weeping, but the prostrate little form was shaken. Unsteadily, at last, the girl got to her feet. She must go upstairs to her room, before the family came. Some one was coming now. Hurrying blindly, Patty collided with that some one-it was Billy. In a businesslike manner Billy turned on the lights. Determinedly he cupped the girl's trembling chin in his hands and looked into her tear-wet face. Then Billy's own face went down to meet the other. "Glory!" he said, softly, "you do care, after all. Oh, Patty, my darling, you have seemed so indifferent. There wasn't any way that I could find out. I just had to know, so I gave you a jolt to surprise you out of yourself. But, oh! Patty-" That young lady leaned comfortably back against the gray tweed shoulder. "Well, you surprised me, all right, Billy," she said.

Paying the Fiddler

The country is recovering from the effects of its orgy of spending. Extravagance, profiteering and unbridled speculation have brought a burden to all. A cry for economy is heard all over the land.

Such conditions have occurred before and will occur again unless checked. In 1874 the Grange adopted its policy of thrift. It declared opposition to excessive salaries, high interest rates and exorbitant profits. It proclaimed the need for the most direct and friendly relations between producers and consumers, that wasteful trade practices might be eliminated.

This program represents the farmer's attitude now-as it did then. The Grange always has adhered to it. It has sought steadfastly to check and public, both individual and gov-habits of living, are a great steadying force in the nation. But they need to widen their influence. The Grange offers you both!

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN is in full accord with these principles. It, too, is fighting the farmer's fight. By practical examples it shows how needless extravagance, both private farmers can correct abuses. And it will make you acquainted with upto-date and profitable farming methods that are being followed all over Our farmers, by reason of sane the country. This, however, is only a part of the help and pleasure you will get in a year's 52 big issues, which leadership and a common spokesman now cost only $1.00. Find out for yourself! ISTORIC HOUSE IN MARKET

Shakespeare Hotel at Stratford-on-Avon Recently Put Up at Auction in London.

On Thanksgiving day there was offered at auction in London the Shakespeare hotel at Stratford-on-Avon, a beautiful specimen of Fourteenth century architecture, which for years has been the main resort of Americans and other tourists to Stratford-on-Avon.

The history of Stratford-on-Avon may be traced back for a period of 1,000 years, and as the birthplace of the great poet it has become a classic center visited annually by some 50,000 people. The Guard house, where Shakespeare was born; Shottery, where he courted Anne Hathaway: Charlotte Park, once the seat of Sir Thomas Lucy, whose displeasure Shakespeare incurred by stealing his deer; the Shakespeare Memorial theater, on the banks of the Avon, and Shakespeare's monument, are all places worthy of visiting in the old market town of Stratford-on-Avon.

The Shakespeare hotel, situated in the center of the town and close to the Shakespeare Memorial Theater, was erected in the Fourteenth century, and has been in the hands of the late Mr. Justins' family since 1870. A few doors from the Shakespeare hotel is the Harvard house, which was the early home of the Harvard family, founders of Harvard university.

MUST PAY TRIBUTE TO ART Not in Admiration, But in Current Coin, is the Edict of the French Authorities.

After all these years of luxurious idleness the Venus de Milo must become a wage earner. The authorities of France have so decreed. And not only Venus, but Mona Lisa and all the other celebrities gathered in the Louvre, and in the Luxembourg and other galleries as well. For the flat has gone forth recently that hereafter those who have been accustomed to visit the museums of Paris day after day, finding their treasures free as air, must pay an admission fee. If you want to go to admire Venus in her crimson velvet seclusion you must pay for the privilege. To be sure, she is worth any price, you must admit. And when you go into the Salon Carre of the Louvre and stop to meditate about what the enigmatical Mona Lisa is meditating, you must pay for that, too. Not a separate admission for each department. No, they are all banded together in one big union, as it were, all those priceless treasures of each museum, and hereafter they will earn their keep.

Rafts May Cross Pacific.

Swedish lumbermen are on this coast investigating the possibility of rafting lumber from British Columbia to Europe. Lumber rafts of large size, called rafanutes, have been successfully towed from Sweden to Great Britain, says the Scientific American. The Ocean Rafanute Syndicate of London, England, has sent William Olsson of Stockholm, an experienced rafanute builder, here to investigate the possibility of adapting that method to British Columbia timber exports.

The rafanutes are made of square timbers. Mr. Olsson, though expressing nothing definite, believes that the tremendous timbers of the British Columbia forests will make possible the construction and successful operation of rafanutes far larger than the rafts now shipped out of the Baltic. Swedish structures carry 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 feet each. It is proposed that the British Columbia rafts will contain 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 feet.

A city in New Jersey having been for some time without a first-class book shop, the proprietor of one of the largest department stores announced that he would establish one if he were assured of the patronage of the book buyers who had done their purchasing in New York. A number of professional men readily agreed to this. The book shop was opened and clerks from other parts of the store were transferred to it. To one of these went a scholarly resident of the city to buy an erudite treatise on an obscure subject. It was not in stock and the customer asked that it be ordered, giving the names of the volume, its publisher and its author. The young saleswoman entered these on an order blank and stood looking expectantly. "Have you all the details? Is there anything you do not understand?" inquired the customer.

"How many dozen do you want?" answered the salesgirl.

His Desperate Hour

By BENTLY PHILLIPS

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Nathan sat at the window watching for Millicent to go by. This for many years had been one of the happy moments of his day. Long and faithfully had Nathan loved Millicent though he had never dared to tell her so. Fortune seemed to have parted them relentlessly and the patient man grieved that he could see no future of promise. Millicent from the days of her girlhood had known every advantage that a successful village banker could give his daughter, while Nathan after earning his way, through school had fallen, as it were, into the harness of his invalided father, caring for the small and never prosperous farm that was their home.

Any opportunity of advancement which he might have had was blocked by present need. No person could be hired or persuaded to look after the exacting old cripple, and Nathan had ever been kind. So resignedly, he took up his burden, burying under plodding work his 'heart's eager desire. The few brief visits which he allowed himself at Millicent's home were joy spots in his life to be lived over again in memory during lonely hours in the house on the hill. It was long since Millicent's father had died leaving her quite alone and Nathan wondered with a sweet hope stirring his heart why she had not married.

"Miss Millicent," the young girls now called her.

She was beloved of them all. Nathan painted the farmhouse a shining white. In summer roses clambered over its neat door posts and from year to year the little place grew more inviting under his care. When his father was sick Millicent would come up the hill to call.

Nathan was not himself that summer. Discouragement is not a good tonic, and when he visited the old village practitioner he was not surprised to learn the truth. His heart showed disturbing symptoms.

"Too much hard work, boy." doctor said to him. Nathan sighed as he went his homeward way. So this was to be the end of his future dreaming. All at once he felt the need of sympathy and comfort. Nathan turned in at Millicent's gate-

So entering the room he told his trouble abruptly, relentlessly watching her face the while. "I came tonight," he said, "from Doctor Linley's. I have heart trouble, Millicent; pretty badly the doctor seems to think."

Nathan laughed shortly. "Reckon I'll go like Dan," he said, " Millicent grew white. For a moment she had difficulty in speaking. "Oh, Nat!" she said then, "I don't believe it's as bad as that. Doctor Linley is old you know, and has old ideas. Doctor Benton is coming from the city tomorrow to see me. Promise Nat that you will come over while he is here." Nathan turned away. He had heard of this city doctor's recent visits to Millicent's home. That fact lately had added much to his unhappiness.

"Good night," he said sadly and was gone. The voice of the invalid father called Millicent next morning over the

"Nathan is sick," said the frightened old man, "and I thought maybe you would come and help us." Miss Millicent's car made the hill quickly. Nathan was very sick indeed, she could see that. His breath came short and painfully. with an effort he beckoned her to his side. Constraint and humility forgotten in his desperate hour, Nathan grasped the hands of the woman he loved. "Now that I am going," he said, "I must tell you. It cannot hurt you now to know-that I loved you always, Millicent-far too much to ask you to share the waste of my life." "Nathan," the woman cried chokingly. She turned toward the door. "Doctor Benton is coming," she whispered. "I left word for him to follow. But before he comes, oh, my dearest, I want you to know that never has there been a moment when I would not have come to you gladly to take my place here as your wife. Nathan! Nathan! Why has it taken an hour like this to unlock your lips, the hour that is too late?"

When the doctor came from the sick man's room Miss Millicent met him near the door. Dumbly she waited his verdict. The young physician smiled

"Indigestion," he announced. "Been eating badly cooked food. He'll be all right in the morning."

"But," faltered Millicent, "Doctor Linley warned Nathan about his

OCEAN DEPTHS

Apparitions That Have Appeared to Divers While Exploring Beneath the Seas.

WHEN HIS DREAM CAME TRUE

Diver Has Desperate Struggle for Life When Companion Suddenly Goes Insane-Tapped on Shoulder by Double.

London.-Considering the number of people who have found a last resting place at the bottom of the sea, it is not surprising that divers should occasionally come across what are popularly known as ghosts.

A diver, while employed one day in bringing up various articles from the wreck of the Royal George, which went down off Spithead on August 28, 1782, being seized with a sudden fit of drowsiness, fell asleep. He dreamed three times in succession that just as he was about to pick up a curiously wrought silver dish from among a mass of debris, a very tall figure, dressed in a diving suit, sprang at him and tried to cut the lifeline. As at this time the other two men he was working with were both of short stature, not in the least degree like the figure in his dream, he soon forgot it. But great was his trepidation one morning when on turning up at his work he found one of his mates absent and a newcomer-a very tall man-in his place. Indeed, so alarmed was he that, on descending he took with him a stout cudgel and warned those in charge of the communication rope to be on the alert for a signal, however slight. On arriving at the bottom he was soon at work on the wreck, and, amid a pile of loose spars, he came upon a dish exactly like the one he had seen in his dreams. When Diver's Dream Came True.

He was staring at it in a kind of dazed fashion when suddenly he saw his companion, the new diver, coming toward him, just as he had seen the figure in his dreams, and the next moment he was engaged in the most desperate struggle for his life. He succeeded in administering such a severe blow on the hand of his assailant with his stick that the latter dropped the knife with which he had been armed, and before he could pick it up again our friend the dreamer had pulled the communication cord and was drawn up out of danger. It subsequently transpired that the new diver had gone raving mad. Another curious case occurred not so many years ago off the coast of Galway. Some divers were employed in looking for the remains of Spanish treasures, when one of their party, wandering a little apart from the rest, saw a dim light in the distance. Advancing toward it, he discovered that it proceeded from the porthole of a wreck of very ancient date: Approaching the ship, not without trepidation, he peeped in, and saw, to his amazement, an old man, with s very long beard, kneeling down examining an iron clasped oaken chest. By and by he raised the lid, and dipping his hands in, drew them out full of golden coins, which he played with like a child plays with some new

Tapped on Shoulder by Double. The diver, happening at this juncture to make a noise, the old man turned round, revealing a face of the most ghastly pallor, which so terrified the diver that he turned tail and fled back to his mates with far more haste than dignity. Pooh poohing his story, they went back with him, and there, sure enough, in the very spot he had described, was the ship, and what was even more wonderful, the chest of gold.

Lastly, there is the case of the diver who was repairing one of the London bridges. He had made his descent into the water, and was kneeling down examining the masonry, when he felt something tapping him on the shoulder. He looked round, when to his utmost terror he saw standing at his shoulder, peering down at him, an exact counterpart of himself. The following day, against the advice of his wife, who was a Scot and very superstitious he again went down in the same place, and, a piece of loose masonry falling on him, he was killed.

"Certain Man" Answered Charge With 85 Yellowbacks

At the closing session of a revival meeting in Washington, N. C., an evangelist, Rev. B. F. McLendon, leaned over the pulpit and told his congregation that a certain man, present at the service, had not been true to his family, or his religion, but that if he would deposit a $10 bill in the collection plate it would be taken as a token of his repentance and nothing further would be said, but that if he refused, the evangelist would publish his name. The collection included 85 ten-dollar bills and five notes asking the evangelist to keep quiet, and promising the $10 in the morning.

INTERESTED IN SAVING FORESTS Conservation Of Timber Lands Now

Found Good Policy Referestation and forest conservation, two subjects which only a few years ago were of little or no interest to the average timber operator, farmer, landowner and investing business man in Maryland, are steadily growing in favor, and in their present status are beginning to repay in some measure the work and efforts of the State Board of Forestry, which for many years has been doing missionary work in those

This is the opinion of F. W. Besley, Maryland State Forester. According to Mr. Besley the planting and care of trees as a commercial enterprise has not been seriously considered in Maryland. It was practically impossible to interest landholders in this work. As the State owns only about 4000 acres of the State's total land area of 2,000,000 acres, most of the Board's work had to be done among private interests.

In late years the Board's work has been showing results. Many large landowners in the State, particularly on the Eastern Shore, have begun to reforest their lands, have planted the seeds and shrubs, which in 35 or 40 years will grow forests from which 25,000 board feet of lumber an acre may be cut.

The State's tree nurseries at College Park annually produce nearly a million tree shrubs, all of which are being bought by the people of the State for a nominal sum.

Little or no work in the field of reforestation is being done in the Western part of the State because of forest fires, The prevention and fighting of these fires, which in one day can wipe out the work of years, is occupying most of the Board's time in Western Maryland. The State spends only about $6,000 a year in this work.

The problem of putting cut-over land areas to a beneficial and profitable use is one which is occupying the attention of the entire South, where there are millions of acres of these idle lands. In Maryland, said Mr. Besley, with its moderate chimate and rich soils, reforation could well be conducted as solution for the problem.

TIME IS THE TEST

The Testimony Of Princess Anne People Stands The Test

The test of time is what tells the tale. The public soon finds out when misrepresentations are made, and merit alone will stand the test of time.

Princess Anne people appreciate merit, and many months ago local citizens publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills; they do so still. Would a citizen make the statement which follows unless convinced that the article was just as represented? Below is testimony such as the sufferer from kidney ills is looking for.

Mrs. Carroll Hastings, stone road,

Princess Anne, says: "Fornearly seven years I had disordered kidneys and I was miserable and weak. I had a dragging-down pain in my back and my heart palpitated. Then again, I had sick headaches and dreadful pains in the small of my back. I was getting worse every day and I finally got Doan's Kidney Pills at Jones' drug store. The first hox cured me of backache and the other symptoms were greatly relieved." other symptoms were greatly relieved."

This is "Fire Engine Week" and it is the duty of every citizen of Princess Anne to make it a memorable one by putting forth extraordinary effort to raise the necessary amount for the purchase of a fire engine and apparatus for adequate fire protection. LEND FARMERS

Governor Harding Says Reserve Banks Increased Instead of Restricting Loans.

More Than Two-and-a-Half Times at Much Paper Was Discounted in Eleven Months of 1920 as in the Year 1919-Report to Gronna.

Washington,-More than two and one-half times as much agricultural paper was rediscounted by Federal Reserve banks in the 11 months down to December 1, 1920, as was rediscounted during the entire year of 1919, according to estimates furnished by Governor Harding of the federal reserve board to Senator A. J. Gronna, chairman of the senate committee on agriculture. The estimates furnished show that farm paper rediscounted last year amounted to almost $2,000,-000,000. The estimates are: 1920, $1,-980,033,000; 1919, $729,266,000.

The farmers have been complaining that Federal Reserve banks discriminated against them, and instead of making credits to the growers more elastic, actually restricted loans, Treasury officials have consistently maintained that credits were not restricted but were greatly increased. Nevertheless, the farmers have insisted that they have been discriminated against, and on this contention they have based their demand for a revival of the War Finance corporation. The bill reviving the corporation has been passed by congress.

More Loans Than Are Tabulated. In his letter to Senator Gronna, Governor Harding intimates that while his figures are merely estimates based on the production and sales of farm products, undoubtedly much more money than is tabulated was actually loaned to the farmers. He writes:

"In compliance with the request made in your letter of December 14, for information regarding the amount of actual agricultural paper rediscounted during the years 1919 and 1920 (to date), based on agricultural production and sales of the respective years, I have the honor to submit herewith copy of a tabular statement compiled from telegraphic data received from all Federal Reserve banks.

"Section 13 of the federal reserve" act provides that notes, drafts and bills drawn or issued for agricultural purposes or based on live stock having a maturity of not longer than six months, are eligible for rediscount by a Federal Reserve bank, the limit of maturity in all other cases being 90 days. The Federal Reserve banks rediscount large amounts of agricultural paper which has a maturity not exceeding 90 days, but such paper is classified with other paper of like ma-

"Therefore, agricultural and live stock paper, as shown by the Federal Reserve banks, applies only to paper having a maturity of longer than 90 days. The board receives this information from day to day and the amount of agricultural discount at each Federal Reserve bank, that is, paper having a maturity of from ninety days to six months, is published each month in the Federal Reserve Bulletin.

"The special figures furnished by the Federal Reserve banks in accordance with your request are in all cases estimates, no exact figures of the total volume of loans for agricultural purposes being available at the Federal Reserve banks. In the first place, most of the borrowings at Federal Reserve banks by member banks during the year 1919 and a considerable proportion of these borrowings during the current year have been in the form of the borrowing banks' own notes, secured by government obligations or by commercial, industrial and agricultural paper. It is known that member banks in New York city have made large loans to their correspondent banks throughout the country, and it is reasonable to suppose that part of the proceeds of such loans have been applied by the borrowing banks for agricultural purposes, but it is impossible to state the amount.

Conditions Similar in Other Banks. "The same is true with respect to loans made by member banks in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City. New Orleans and other financial centers throughout the country. Nonmember State banks lend large sums in the aggregate for agricultural purposes. But as they have no dealings loans to farmers are not reflected in the figures furnished by the Federal Reserve banks, although it is a fact that all Federal Reserve banks have been lending a large amount to member banks, which have in turn rediscounted paper for nonmember banks. "It should be borne in mind also that the total amount of farmers' notes rediscounted by Federal Reserve banks gives no indication of the amount advanced by the Federal Reserve banks to finance the production and sale of farm products, since large amounts advanced to member banks in other districts on commercial and industrial paper are used by these banks for loans to agricultural interests. Only the Federal Reserve banks of Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis and Minneapolis have taken account of ans of this character by increasin proportionately the amounts formally classed as farmers' paper.

"In view of these facts, it is evident that the compilation transmitted herewith is valuable merely as indicating the increased amount of agricultural paper rediscounted by the Federal Reserve banks for member banks during the year 1920 over the year 1919.

"The board transmits also a table prepared from figures published in the Federal Reserve Bulletin, showing the holdings by each Federal Reserve bank on the last Friday in each month during the years 1919 and 1920 of paper classed by the Federal Reserve banks as agricultural and live stock paper. This classification does not include anything but notes having a maturity of longer than 90 days. It will be noted that there has been a steady increase in these holdings since the beginning of the present year and that this increase has continued after October of the present year, while in 1919 normal reductions from the high September figures are shown during the months of October, November and December.

"The increased holdings of agricultural paper by the Federal Reserve bank of Boston during July and August of the present year, represent in the greater part paper held under rediscount for other Federal Reserve banks. The comment made regarding the incompleteness of the figures in the first table applies with equal force to the figures in the table showing the monthly holdings, which are exclusive of the Federal Reserve bank holdings of nonagricultural paper, the proceeds of which may have been used by the member banks to finance production and sales of agricultural staples."

Governor Harding's estimate of the paper rediscounted with the Federal Reserve banks, based on the production and sale of farm products, follows: In each case the 1919 figures are given first, and the 1920 figures second. The figures, as applied to the Liberated Prisoner Who Has Not Spoken for Ten Years Is Shocked.

Finds Many Things That Astonish Him, Particularly Short Skirts and Gauze Stockings-Looks as if They Were on Stilts.

Boston.-Free again after 25 years in Charlestown state prison, the last ten of which were spent without uttering a word, P. J. Hanley, otherwise known as "Silent Corkey," declares the things that strike him as most amazing are women's dress, the general refinment of people and the intelligence of the younger generation.

Still unwilling to talk, "Silent Corkey" says these things in writing. After "Corkey" had written the first line he stood up and embellished the observation by pantomime. He pulled the left leg of his blue serge trousers almost up to the knees. Then he pulled both legs together, signifying that skirts are also tight. Finally, he placed both hands on his hips as if the sights shocked him. Then he sat down and wrote:

Where's the Bustle?

"What became of the bustle?" The first thing "Corkey" wanted to do, apparently, was to perforate the report that he went on a silence strike at Charlestown because of some grievance. As to that, "Corkey" Hanley's Federal Reserve banks in each of 12 | first observation consisted of two "Paper talk."

Asked to elucidate, the man who had been put away for 25 years wrote this: "It happened in 1910 that I was taking the air in the yard, walking about as all do who are in plant (Cherry Hill), and there was a storm and a terrific wind was blowing. I stood for a while under an old chimney at the side of C. H. (Cherry Hill). Bricks were blown down. My head was cut. (You can see the marks). I became unconscious. I have never been able to speak since that moment. I wish I could. Dr. L. Vernon Briggs (a good man) said I must have received some sion."

At the prison it has been said "Corkey" became chronically silent after a fellow prisoner had repeated statements made by "Corkey" and caused him to be punished. "Corkey" wrote that he was all worn out from seeing the sights in New York, where he went on a visit after his release. "The Bowery," he said, "is not what it used to be."

A young woman stenographer thought the visitor should be more specific in his remarks about women's dresses. "Corkey" was willing. This time he wrote:

"When I went away there were no such short dresses, except (on) little girls of ten. And the thin silk stockings you wear-bare."

Then there was more pantomime to describe high heels, and Hanley sat down again and wrote four words more:

"As if on stilts." He's No Knocker.

But he isn't a knocker. He has bee. just as much impressed, and very favorably, by the rising generation. He

"Young people today appear to be much more intelligent than the young folks of 25 years ago. Their manners are good. They look clean. They've got a go-ahead look that only one in a hundred used to have. This is a great country."

There could be only one or two questions more before Hanley had to run for his train to the suburbs. "What are you going to do? What kind of a job do you want?" "Anything-I don't care what. You can see how strong I am; that will help me to lead a straight life. I guess I'm the only man recently discharged over there who did not have a job waiting for him."

A few words of encouragement to the visitor and he was asked: "Well, how does it feel to be out again and free?" Corkey wrote:

"Just like being born again."

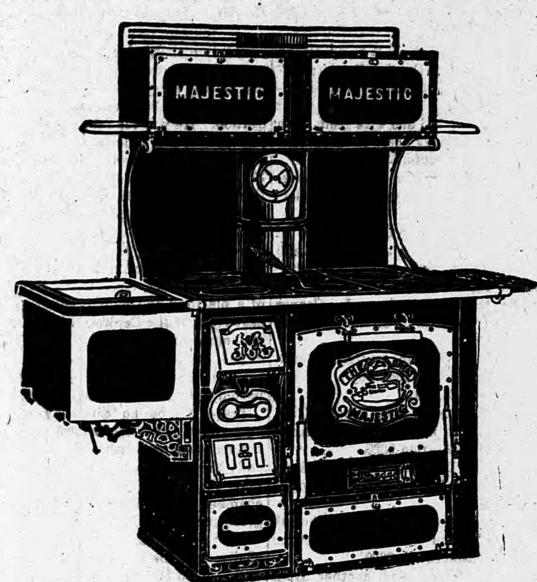

Ancient 45-Story Stone Flat Building Is Found

Baltimore, Md .- The discovery of a stone "apartment" building 45 stories high and containing 1,000 rooms, believed to have been the home of a now extinct tribe of American Indians, was announced at a meeting of the Archaeological Institute of America at Johns Hopkins university. The "apartment" was uncovered with a group of towns representing an ancient civilization in the midst of the southwestern desert.

It was unearthed by the School of American Research conducted at Santa Fe, N. M., by the institute.

It was described by Edgar L. Hewett, director of the school, at the meeting of the institute held in conjunction with the American Philological association and the Maya society.

Eight Stills Are Destroyed in the Mountains of Kentucky Without a Casualty.

INTERESTING STORY

Although Numerous Shots Were Fired by Revenue Men and Mountaineers, Not a Death Is Reported-Chase Leads to Stills.

Lexington, Ky.-Raids upon moonshine stills in the mountains of Kentucky have become bloodless, according to government agents who recently conducted one of the most important raids made in years.

Whether the "shooting eye" of the mountaineer or the secret service agent has become dimmed or whether the desire for less killing has reached into the far mountain recesses is a disputed point, but the fact remains that 12 revenue agents raided and destroyed eight large stills in Whitley county, fired numerous shots and were fired at numerous times, but, so far as is known, not a casualty was recorded.

Standing in clumps of sparse shrubbery on the top of knobs along Laurel Fork, in Whitley county, sentries posted apparently by moonshiners watched the operations of federal prohibition officers during the recent sensational raid in the "South America" section of Whitley county, according to members of the party. The raiders from the office of Chief Field Deputy U. G. McFarland were reticent about the battle reported to have raged about the stills. "There wasn't a thing in it," they were unanimous in saying. "We just went in there and destroyed eight stills. There were a lot of shots fired, but how many of them were fired at us we don't know. That wasall there was to it."

Number of Shots Fired.

The raiders from the local office were Steven Cornet and Charles Winfrey, who were the leaders of the raid; J. H. Reynolds and Joe Cavanaugh. They were accompanied by Sheriff Renfro of Whitley county and seven deputies.

Steve Cornet, after some persuasion, told of the raid. "We left Williamsburg on the morning of December 3 and went via Holden, Tenn., the nearest railroad point, into the section of Whitley county, known to the natives as 'South America,'" he said. "We hunted there for stills in the hollows of Laurel Fork and Olean Fork, sources of the Cumberland river. We destroyed eight stills in all.

"The first still destroyed was one owned by DeWitt Gibson. We arrested the three Gibson boys without any trouble. They were at their home. The next still we believe belonged to a man named Williams. The next two destroyed were owned by persons whose names we could not ascertain. We had no trouble the first day, although a number of shots were fired in the distance. I could not say positively that the shots were fired at us, but think that possibly they were signals to warn the countryside that raiders were about. We could see men standing on the top of the knobs, where they could see the road winding around the banks of Laurel Fork, which, I believe, is the crookedest. stream in the world. Sometimes it is hard to tell which way it runs.

"The second day we continued the search along Laurel Fork. It was at this time that the nearest to any real trouble occurred. We left an old man named Parsons and another man to guard the mouth of a hollow while wesearched it. Just after we left the guards a mountaineer popped out from behind a tree, fired several shots at the guards with a pistol and ran.

Chase Leads to Stills.

"We gave chase, firing as we ran. The man fell, but when we searched we could find no trace of him. This led to one of the amusing incidents of the trip. During the chase we found two stills of which we had had no inkling. The man led my party directly to an 80-gallon still, which we destroyed. Another section of the party (we had become divided during the chase) found the second still on the opposite side of the hill from that down which the fugitive ran. We did not find out who owned either still.

"We then went up a hollow, where we found another still. This was a rough hollow, and we had to climb over bowlders and hang on to trees to get to the still. We then started in the opposite direction. Two miles down another rough hollow we found the last still destroyed.

"A lot of shots were fired on the second day by both natives and ourselves, but nobody was hurt."

Say It With Flowers

By LOUIS RAYBOLD

(C. 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) The sign suspended in a florist's window projected its appeal to the eyes of Henry Walters, riding by at the moment in a street car, a pucker of wrinkles between his highly arched

He had been thinking, wondering how in thunder to say it, when, presto change, there was the sign, "Say It With Flowers."

And what was it Henry Walters wanted to say? Jus this: "My darling Mirabel, for going o five years I have been calling on you Wednesdays and Sundays, and, of late, on Fridays, also. I love you passionately, devotedly. Will you be mine and share with me whatever is left over of a school teacher's salary after paying a 50 per cent increased rent, a 102 per cent increased grocery bill, and goodness knows how much increased amounts for sundries?" Henry got off at the next block and walked back. His problem now was to select those blossoms which would adequately describe the various shades of his feeling toward Mirabel.

Five minutes later Henry glanced at his watch. He could still reach Mirabel's at the usual time. Coincident with the idea hove in sight a messenger boy. Henry beckoned to him and handed him the box of flowers.

"Take this to 33 Wayland avenue," he said, "and-got a message form with you?" The boy fished in his pockets and produced one. Under the arc light Henry wrote diligently, sealed the result and handed it back. Then, "By George!" he said to himself, "I may as well get ril of these books, too, instead of lugging them up to Mirabel's."

So presently the boy, with two bundles, two addresses and a fair-sized tip, sauntered away.

Promptly at 7:55 Henry, palpitantly expectant, entered 33 Wayland ave-

It developed that Miss Thompson was in and walting for him-a very uguty ngure, in spite of a certain teariness about the eyes and a trembling of her kissable mouth.

"Here's your note-and I sent your horrid old packages right back. Goodby forever." Henry pulled his hat down over his eyes and started for home across An hour later he unlocked the door of his room. As he did so his landlady puffed up the stairs with a large "A boy brought this just before supper time," she panted. "All right, never mind," Henry said, gently but wearily. He saw it all now. The boy had balled things up-had brought the flowers here and taken the books to Wayland avenue. Wait -what were the titles of those books? Dimly he recalled the titles:

"Economical Recipes," "How to Make One Dollar Do the Work of Two," "Home Dressmaking."

Henry mopped his brow. And there was yet another. What, oh, what was it? "Every-every-" Good Lord! "Every Wife Can Be a Wage Earner." And he who believed that woman's sphere was in the home! He groaned and buried his face in his hands. For suddenly he remembered the note he had sent: "Dear Mirabel:

"These tell you better than I the thoughts of you which are in my heart. Let them speak for me the words I dare not utter. Hopefully, "HENRY."

Puff-puff-his landlady again. Tap

"Telephone, Mr. Walters." In three leaps he was downstairs. Yes-a teary voice was at the other end of the wire. She had regretted her hastiness-perhaps it was all a mistake and anyway, her father said such thrift was all too uncommon in young men today-would he forgive her and come back?

More passionately than the Richmond roses, he poured his heart into the transmitter.

"Oh, Mirabel, darling, it was all a mistake, but it isn't a mistake to say love you, I adore you, I worship you. And I am coming right up to explain."

On the way to Wayland avenue. Henry drew exquisite breaths of antice ipation. In his left hand he bore a large cardboard receptacle whose contents would corroborate his recent statements. Their purchase wasn't a total loss. But why, oh, why, when he was racking his brain for a method of telling his love, hadn't he thought of the telephone!

Truly a Short Reign.

The Bradley family posses Marion and Oscar. Then there was also Katherine, who was a baby of fifteen months when the twins arrived, and Victoria, the oldest, One day father Bradley was accosted by Victoria.

"Father, you are partial to Katharine and favor her too much." "Victoria," he recurned, "I always feel sorry for Ver. She was the baby for such a short time." "Well," Inswered Victoria, "what do you thin, of Marion? She was the baby for only 15 minutes."

Naturally. "There is one industry which needs to keep on the jump." "What is that?" "Hop growing."

Until entirely rid of a cough or cold, look out. They are a source of danger.

MAKES THE SAPPHIRE BLUSH

Radium Treatment Turns the Cheaper Stones to Rubies Which Command the Highest Prices.

Modern science has not brought us very much nearer the magic stone of the old philosophers, but it has enabled later experts to play some surprising tricks with the existing materials of the jeweler and lapidary. The old alchemists set out to discover the philosopher's stone, and achieved gunpowder and other adjuncts to civilization as the accidental by-product of their original inquiry. Their less credulous descendants reverse the process; the invention is made first and its application to magic is discovered afterward.

The existence of the electric furnace makes it possible to create diamonds that are the veritable stone, and to fuse chippings and fragments of ruby into one complete jewel. Now arrives a report that with the aid of radium successful transformations have been made in the appearance, if not in the nature, of certain precious stones. A sapphire, it is said, has been turned into a glorious ruby by long exposure to the effect of radium. Chemically considered, this is not very surprising, for the two stones are both examples of corundum, and the mysterious accident of color is the principal difference between them. If a sapphire can be made to blush hard enough for its mistake in not being a ruby, presumably it could blush itself into a most accomplished example of the more valuable stone.

SIMPLE REASON FOR THRIFT

Its Practice Necessary That There May Be Margin of Production Over Consumption.

Is it not mere caddishness for one who can afford to buy and does buy silk skirts and silk stockings and automobiles, and who freely admits that he wastes money, but who justifles himself somewhat belligerently by saying that he can afford to waste money, and that it is nobody's business, to object to other people doing the same sort of thing only because he thinks the other people cannot afford the expenditures? Right down in our hearts we know that the concern is not all with the welfare of those other people who are wasting their money; it is really a matter of jealousy and of class distinction based on clothing—a feeling that these people have committed social misdemeanors, as when the cook duplicated her mistress' hat. And any one who preaches thrift to people on the ground that they should not have what they like for their money is simply preaching nonsensical cant. He is really preaching revolution.

If, then, thrift has no virtue in itself, if every person within the limits of the law is entitled to spend what he can earn, and more than he can earn if he can get away with it, is there any unmoral reason for thrift?

The reason for thrift is plain. It is not necessary to talk about morality. It is simply that if we do not have thrift we shall not mave a margin of production over consumptionthat is, we shall not have capital. If we do not have capital we cannot have progress, for we shall have no means wherewith to make improvement in existing facilities for production. There is the danger of extravagance. And it is a very real danger.-Samuel Crowther, in the North American Review.

PAPER FROM VENEER WASTE

Possibilities in Material That Has Hitherto Been Considered to Be Without Value.

In the wood waste from veneer factories the United States forest products laboratory sees considerable raw material suitable for the manufacture of high grades of paper. The cores of many kinds of veneer logs, now used in a large part for fuel, would make excellent pulpwood. In addition, a large part of the clippings could be turned into pulp stock with profit. Among the veneer woods whose waste has paper-making possibilities are red gum, yellow poplar, cottonwood, birch, tupelo, basswood and beech. Many veneer factories cutting these species are already within shipping distance of pulp mills. In certain other cases veneer factories are so grouped that they might furnish pulpwood enough to warrant the erection of a centrally located mill. Other economic factors being favorable, such a mill could profitably operate on a daily supply of veneer waste equivalent to 50 cords of ordinary pulpwood.-Scientific American.

"Roast" Handball Players. The execrations uttered by the indignant baseball fan against the unlucky or awkward player in America the epithets hurled by the occupants | tories will be able to predict with acof the gallery at the contestants in the game of handball in the playgrounds of Madrid, Spain. "Rogue!" "Thief!" "Convict!" and "Idiot!" are some of the mild terms with which the players are greeted when they miss a ball or send it back in an easy position for the opponent to play it. The reason for this excitement is the prevalent betting, in which the women spectators participate as much as the men. Professional bookmakers attend all matches, and their shouts of the odds for and against the players are mixed with the cries of the gambling spectators, until the scene resembles a bedlam.

Another Discoverer.

In an old Spanish geographical work on America published in 1552 by Francesco Lopes de Gomera, a priest of Sevilla, it is mentioned that Labrador was reached for the first time by a party of Norwegian sailors piloted by John Scolvus or Jon Skolp in 1476. The announcement was made for the first time some years ago, but it was greeted with skepticism that Columbus had been anticipated on the American shorts by any but Leif Ericson, but recently additional evidence has shown that Columbus' visit to this country was antedated by Scolvus by 20 years and steps are being taken to urge the former's claims for honors.

Pecks of Diamonds.

During the year 1919 South Africa exported 1,124 pounds of diamonds. This quantity represented just about 125 quarts.

This vast quantity of precious stones reduced to terms of bushels would equal a trifle less than four, or what would be two ordinary grain bags full of them. Naturally the stones included a great number of very large ones as well as many medium-sized and small ones.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Shaft for Hero Dead.

An obelisk of granite seventy feet high is to be erected in Denmark as a memorial to the many thousands of American and allied soldiers of Danish descent who died in the World war. It has been estimated that about 30,-000 men of Danish blood fought in the American armies in France and that about 20,000 Danes fought in the Canadian, Australian, British and French armies.

MUST USE FOUR LANGUAGES

Advertisers in Turkey Necessarily Under a Handicap That Amounts to a Good Deal,

In order to advertise in Constantinople it is necessary to use four languages. The market is hard to cultivate, but newspapers give good results there. The population of Constantinople is very cosmopolitan, and all the foreigners speak their own language and read their own newspapers, writes Trade Commissioner Eliot G. Mears. To reach the public in general, advertisements should be published in newspapers of at least four languages.

However, the best results are obtained by publication in Turkish newspapers, for, on the one hand, the Turkish population is most numerous, and on the other the Turkish reader is more susceptible to the claims of advertisements than are Europeans and Armenians. It has been found by experience that advertising in newspapers gives very good results in Constantinople, especially if it is pushed vigorously.

No advertising is carried on tramcars. Street advertising is not protected by law and cannot be recommended to foreign concerns. The cirulation of newspapers is not great. French newspapers have an approximate issue of 6,000 to 8,000, Greek 4,-. 000 to 12,000, Armenian 4,000 to 8,000, and Turkish 10,000 to 15,000.

MONOPOLY LOST BY GERMAN'

American Chemists Are Now Producing the Rare Sugars Required for Scientific Purposes.

Not least among the triumphs of the new American chemical industry has been the production of the rare sugars, so long a German monopoly. The sugars were called for by the small hospitals, as they are required in small amount in bacteriological laboratories-one of them, for instance, being the most sensitive stimulent of typhoid growth, while others serve in the detection of cholera germ. The infinite care necessary to prepare them in a state of absolute purity makes their cost seemingly enormous. The most expensive rare sugar catalogued is stated by Drug and Chemical Markets to be dulcitol, at $375 a pound, while mannose is worth $140 a pound. This is a delicate and delicious sweet derived from manna, which is secreted in thin scales from certain trees and shrubs, and with which the children of Israel were miraculously fed during their wanderings in the wilderness. Xylose, quoted at $120 a pound, is made from the corn cob; inulin is obtained from the bulb of the dahlia at certain seasons of the year. Other rare sugars are-aribinose, at $100 at pound; levulose, $80 a pound, and raffinose, $75 a pound.

Better Weather Forecasts.

Weather forecasts for months ahead will be possible within a few years as a direct result of solar observations, R. M. German "Thoroughness."

Max Walter, head of a boys' training school in Frankfort, tells the following story by way of illustrating German thoroughness: A venerable teacher in one of Germany's preparatory schools was distractedly ambling about his study one day when he noticed a stray piece of paper. Picking it up he saw that it was a Latin composition from one of his devoted disciples.

On looking at it more closely he detected an error which he had overlooked. Seating himself at his desk, he dipped his pen in good red ink and made the necessary correction. He then folded the paper into a neat roll, stuck it in the fire, and with it lighted his pipe.

Belgians Teach Farming. The Belgian government has hit upon a novel scheme of teaching the farmers of the country better methods of farming, says Motor. The idea of a school for farmers is not new, but the idea of taking the school to the farmer by means of a motor caravan is certainly novel. The school building consists of three units, one powered with a gasoline motor; in short a building section on a motor truck. With this powered unit go two trailers and the three rolled into position and joined together makes the commodious and convenient classroom.

Cat Goes 600 Miles in Wheel.

A kitten crawled inside the rim of a big flywheel at the Great Northern mills at Burlington, Neb., and fell asleep. The mill pet was unnoticed and the giant machinery was set in motion. The wheel whirred about with the kitten inside for nine hours, held to its perilous position by the running of the wheel. The kitten was still alive when the machinery was stopped for the night. It was estimated it had traveled 600 miles.

WOMEN AS "PAMPERED TOYS"

Distinguished French Abbe Makes Some Sharp Commentaries on Sex Relations in America.

American women expect (very rightly) from their husbands the same attention which French husbands receive from their wives. The American husband expects nothing, and for what he receives the Lord makes him truly thankful, writes Ernest Dinnet, in Har-

"We are pampered toys," an American lady told me in a distinctly resentful tone, "but we only know it when our husbands, after keeping every trouble from us, suddenly die."

If the abstraction called the American woman could be met with, I should ask her whether she really likes to see a dozen men in her drawing room watch her the whole evening and bob up with military precision the moment she half rises to ring the bell; whether she would not prefer her escort to think of what he is saying to her instead of concentrating on where she walks, skipping to the unprotected side of her the whole time; or whether she likes being supported across the road with infinite precautions, as if she were a very ill person or a very brittle object; or, on the contrary, firmly grasped below the shoulder and wafted to the other side with the triumphant ease of long practice.

I have kept a picture representing three exceedingly widely known American men watching a lady go down a deck stairway. She is spoken of as a sportswoman and would probably think nothing of scrambling down a rope ladder if it amused her. The steps on which she appears are broad and comfortable, but the gentlemen with guiding and supporting gestures smile at her achievement with the same wonder and delight as if she were a baby for the first time off the go-cart. Meanwhile the lady herself smiles in her furs like coy Phoebe between two clouds.

RARE FRUITS IN PHILIPPINES

Two That Are Said to Be Delicious and Unknown in the Rest of the World.

ippine islands are two delicious fruits almost unknown in the rest of the world. One of these is the durian, whose remarkable qualities were descanted upon by Alfred Russel Wallace during his explorations in the Malay archipelago. It grows on a lofty tree somewhat resembling an elm, is about as large as a coconut, has a shiny shell, and contains a creamy pulp which combines some of the flavor of a delicious custard with those of a fine cheese.

To eat durians, we are told by those who know, is a new sensation worth a voyage to the East to experience. Americans in the islands call the durian "the vegetable Limburger cheese." The other rare fruit spoken of is the mangosteen, said to be the only fruit that the governor general of the islands has never tasted. The exquisitely flavored liquid it contains can-

The 1919 issues of the American Bible society were 3,752,309 volumes. The sun never sets on the representatives of this society, which asserts that some one is busy every hour of the day and every day of the year circulating the Scriptures. This total means that seven volumes were issued every minute of every hour of every day of the year.

The issues of 1919 were the smallest since 1911; chiefly because of after war conditions. The average of annual issues for the last ten years has been over 5,000,000 volumes. For the period of the war, 1914-1919, it was over 5,870,000, which means that on an average 11 volumes of Scriptures were issued every minute of the years of the war by the American Bi-

Prof. Alexander Silverman has invented a new illuminator for the microscope, whose special advantage is that it gives a very strong light upon the object examined, so that opaque and translucent bodies can be as readily studied as transparent ones. The top of the object on the side can be seen with all the variations of its surface. It is particularly valuable in testing samples of metals since it shows the presence of blow holes and pits and much detail not hitherto visible. It is likewise useful to textile experts since it shows the threads of a fabric from every angle and is also much appreciated by bacteriolo-

THE POWER OF LEADERSHIP

You can give a boy the best college and technical education that the country affords, but if he can not impress his personality on others, if he is not able 1-18 to make them respond to the courses of action which he suggests, he will be only a passive figure. And yet all the while he may have excellent ideas.

On the other hand, many people secure conspicuous positions who seem to have little general intelligence. In politics they are particularly successful through an ingratiating manner. In business they often go a good ways on bluff. They somehow strike a note of confidence that wins assent and person-

It often happens that the most intelligent person is the least forthputting. In his broad view of pros and cons, he sees objections even in his own ideas, and these shake his confidence in any proposition he may be advocating. Meanwhile the empty-headed man, who can see only one side of any idea, speaks with such bold confidence that he commands his following.

Hence one of the first aims of education should be to give young people this power of forceful expression of their thought. They need to get over the shy hesitations which a modest person feels at putting forth his ideas for the feels at putting forth his ideas for the criticism of others.

Oral recitations are very valuable in helping students acquire the confidence to back up their ideas. Written tests have their value but they do not give the self assurance that some quiet necessity.

"Vamps," "get-rich-quick" men and all kinds of parasites, flourish in such centers.

Certain people do not find amusements interesting unless they have a risky tone. And there are a lot who have made more money in inflated times than they know what to do with. They enjoy kicking up their heels in forbidden pastures. The United States would be quite as well off if some of these Some people's notion of packing up folks absented themselves permanently.

State Board To Confer With Educators

The proposed conference of members of all county boards of education and county superintendents, with the State Board of Education, will be held in Baltimore February 1st and 2nd, it was announced last Wednesday by State Superintendent Albert S. Cook.

The purpose of the meeting will be to get views of county board members on educational features, so that additions may be made to the program to be presented to the next Legislature. One of the chief subjects that probably will come before the conference is the counties' sentiment on increased school taxes. It is generally understood that the new educational program will necessitate increased expenditures for schools and it is the plan of the State Board of Education so to arrange the program and present it to the public that necessity for increased expenditures will be ap-

A meeting of the State Board of Education will be held February 3, immediately after the proposed conference.

RITAIN ADOPTS POISON GAS | LOSES $1,700 BY "BOX GAME"

its Use as Supreme Weapon of the Next War Is Seen in Dyestuffs Act.

Washington.-By the passage of the dyestuffs import regulations act Great Britain has definitely accepted the theory that poison gas will be the sureme weapon of the next war, and at the same time has opened the way for the entry of German dyes into this ountry, according to views expressed by chemical experts of the govern-

The British act, which became a law recently, prohibiting the importation of dyestuffs into Great Britain for ten years, enables England to build up her dye industry to a point of complete independence from the outside

Poison gas and dyestuffs both come from coal tar. By insuring the development of the dye industry, chemical experts say, Great Britain has laid the groundwork for possible widespread use of gas in warfare, as chemical factories can turn from the manufacture of dyestuffs to the production of poison gas practically at will.

Direct competition in this country between German and American made dves also is seen by officials here as a result of the British dyestuffs act.

EXHUME U. S. HEROES' BODIES

Nine Hundred of the 1,777 Dead Rest. ing at Bony, France, Start Journey Home.

Paris.—Exhumation of the bodies of the American soldiers buried at Bony cemetery, all men of the Twenty-seventh (New York National Guard) and Thirtieth (Wildcat, from Tennessee and North and South Carolina) divisions, began recently.

Of 1,777 bodies in the cemetery, about 900 will be returned to the United States and the remainder will not be disturbed. Bony is to be one of the four permanent cemeteries in France, and other bodies will be moved into the cemetery, but this work will not start until the work of sending bodies to America has been completed.

It is the first big battlefield cemetery to be reached by the army exhumation mits. The district is so devastated that there is no shelter for the workers and a train had to be provided to make quarters for them. The winter weather has also set in and movable sheds have had to be built to shelter the men while working.

St. Louis Salconkeeper la Reduced to Penury by Series of Robberies.

St. Louis.-John Cicerich, proprietor of a saloon, was swindled out of $900 in cash and $800 in Liberty bonds by two men who worked the ancient "box watching" game on him in a room at the St. Francis hotel. Cicerich several months ago was robbed in his saloon by bandits and more recently two strangers with whom he took a walk robbed him of $300.

He told the police a stranger had asked him to see a friend who was dying in the St. Francis. In a room there Cicerich saw a man, fully dressed, writhing on a bed. The first man explained that the man on the bed was dying and that he wanted to leave his wealth to an honest person.

Cicerich agreed to prove his honesty by drawing all his money from the bank, and was made beneficiary of the "estate." The "dying" man placed a cloth-covered package into a metal box, which was to receive Cicerich's money also and be deposited in the bank. The key to the locked box was given to Cicerich by one of the swindlers. At the bank Cicerich discovered that he had been duped. Both men had fled. Cicerich declared he was now penniless.

United States Power Commission Tells of Immense Projects Contemplated.

Washington.-Applications for permits looking toward the development of more than 12,000,000 horsepower. sufficient to supply 20 cities the size of Chicago, had been filed under the federal waterpower act with the federal power commission up to December 18, the commission announces.

Completion of the contemplated plans as shown in the application, the commission estimates, will advance waterpower development in the United States by more than 40 per cent, and will involve an investment of $1,200,-

The projects covered in the applications range from a small ten horseower plant for a colony of summer cottages, to the storage of the waters of the Upper Colorado, and its tributaries in a huge reservoir.

Twenty-seven states, in addition to Alaska and the District of Columbia, are represented in the 129 applications. California leads in the number of permits, with 35; New York is second, with 13.

Shall We Discard Hyphens? In the struggle for the conservation of energy and material we are urged to cut out the hyphens from our books and writings, says the Chicago Journal. Their use causes us to waste an enormous amount of time, ink and physical force. Some nations build up compound words without any hyphen to break them, but the English find one necessary for a simple word of five letters, like "to-day." It may be roughly estimated that each of the 2,000,000,000 people who write English write "today," "tomorrow" or "tonight" three times a day. Half an ounce of force is required to make a hyphen with a pen or a pencil, so this superfluous symbol entails a total waste of 18,500,000 pounds daily, or enough to draw a passenger train

Burroughs, in his charming little book, "Wake Robin," says it is an event in one's life to find a humming bird's nest. The event happened to me without any effort on my part. Looking up from a seat in the grove, I saw the ruby-throat drop down on its nest, like a shining emerald from the clouds; it did not pause upon the edge of the nest, but dropped immediately upon it. The nest was situated upon an oak twig, and was about the size of a black-walnut, and from where I sat it looked more like an excrescence than a nest. It was situated in the fork of two twigs, and firmly glued at the base to the lower, but was not fastened to the upper twig.-Mary Treat in "Home Studies able to think of germs .- Toledo Blade. CARDUI HELPED REGAIN STRENGTH

Alabama Lady Was Sick For Three Years, Suffering Pain, Nervous and Depressed-Read Her Own Story of Recovery.

Paint Rock, Ala.-Mrs. C. M. Stegall, of near here, recently related the following interesting account of her recovery: "I was in a weakened condition. I was sick three years in bed, suffering a great deal of pain, weak, nervous, depressed. I was so weak, days of pinafores and school books. I couldn't walk across the floor; just Peter had been much older and wiser had to lay and my little ones do the work. I was almost dead. I tried to his superiority. Almost she had every thing I heard of, and a number of doctors. Still I didn't get any relief. I couldn't eat, and slept poorly. I filled her heart for him might be love; believe if I hadn't heard of and taken almost she was yielding to Peter's Cardul I would have died. Early Irish History. In the earliest time of which there is any record, Ireland was inhabited by tribes of the great Celtic family. to which belonged the ancient Britons of the larger island, and the Gauls of the country now known as France. Each tribe had its chief, and after a time a supreme monarch came to the front. One of the most famous of these was Brian, who overthrew the invading Danes in the battle of Clontarf, fought in the year 1014 near Dublin. He was slain in his tent at the close of the fight. 'After his death complete abeyance, misrule and anform of society was largely broken up. of Turlough, was the last of the monarchs of Celtic Ireland. Jeanne's Friend

By MILDRED WHITE

(C. 1920, Western Newspaper Union.) "If there was only some way that I could help you, Jeanne," Peter regretted. He reached out his hand to pat hers. Jeanne laughed tremulously. "Dear old Peter," she said, "your unselfish life has been spent helping others. I wish that some good gift might be your own." And then Jeanne flushed, at thought of the one good gift which Peter had so earnestly desired and which she had refused. The man's love for her dated back very far-to the than she and the little girl looked up fancied that the deep affection which filled her heart for him might be love; all that Peter was not. Lawrence, fresh from the great city medical college, had come out to the little town to be her father's helper, hoping some later day to continue the practice which the beloved old physician must lay down. Lawrence wished to "grow with the town," he told Jeanne, and the brilliant, unaccustomed charm of the youth drew the girl captive. Never had she met one so confidently masterful. Jeanne was engaged before she realized the fact of Peter's absence. It was long since she had seen her friend.

. Lawrence's demands upon her companionship had carried her along in a blissful whirl. When the young doctor went back to the city for the winter she remembered Peter repentantly and sent for him to confide her jdy. Peter smiled his patient smile. He was glad, he said, in her happiness. Then he spoke honestly. It had been his hope to win that happiness for himself-Jeanne must know that? Yes, Jeanne knew. She was comparing as he spoke Peter's slightly bent figure with that other one so erect, Peter's kindly, near-sighted eyes with those eyes bold and dark. She sighed the supreme monarchy was often in in sympathy with Peter and dismissed him. When the astounding news of archy widely prevailed and the ancient her flance's betrothal to another young woman appeared in the adjacent city It is said that Roderick O'Connor, son | paper, it was to Peter that Jeanne ran, stunned and breathless.

> "I was engaged to this girl before ever met you, Jean," he wrote. "I am a bounder. Never should have asked you to marry me, but you were so sweet-"

Jeanne wondered when Lawrence brought his wife to live in the town, that the fact left her quite indifferent. And when Lawrence himself met her on the street, she put out an indifferent hand, finding herself afterward smiling the amused smile of con-

But Jeanne had deep and serious problems to face those days, for the beloved old physician's life was ending, peacefully, as he had lived. And when Peter ventured to assist her in the later silent home, with the arrangement of her affairs, they found more evidences of the old doctor's charity than evidences of his thrift. Jeanne knew that half the bills had been receipted gratuitously, while the other half might never be paid.

"And I did not know," she told Peter sadly, "that father had been obliged to sell our home. He kept that from me. Now," her voice broke utterly. "I shall have to go away." I don't know just how I expected to go on living here, but it would have been a comfort to know that the old roof might still cover my head."

It was then that Peter repeated his

"If there was only some way that I could help you, Jeanne."

Her hand curled up to clasp the one resting upon it.

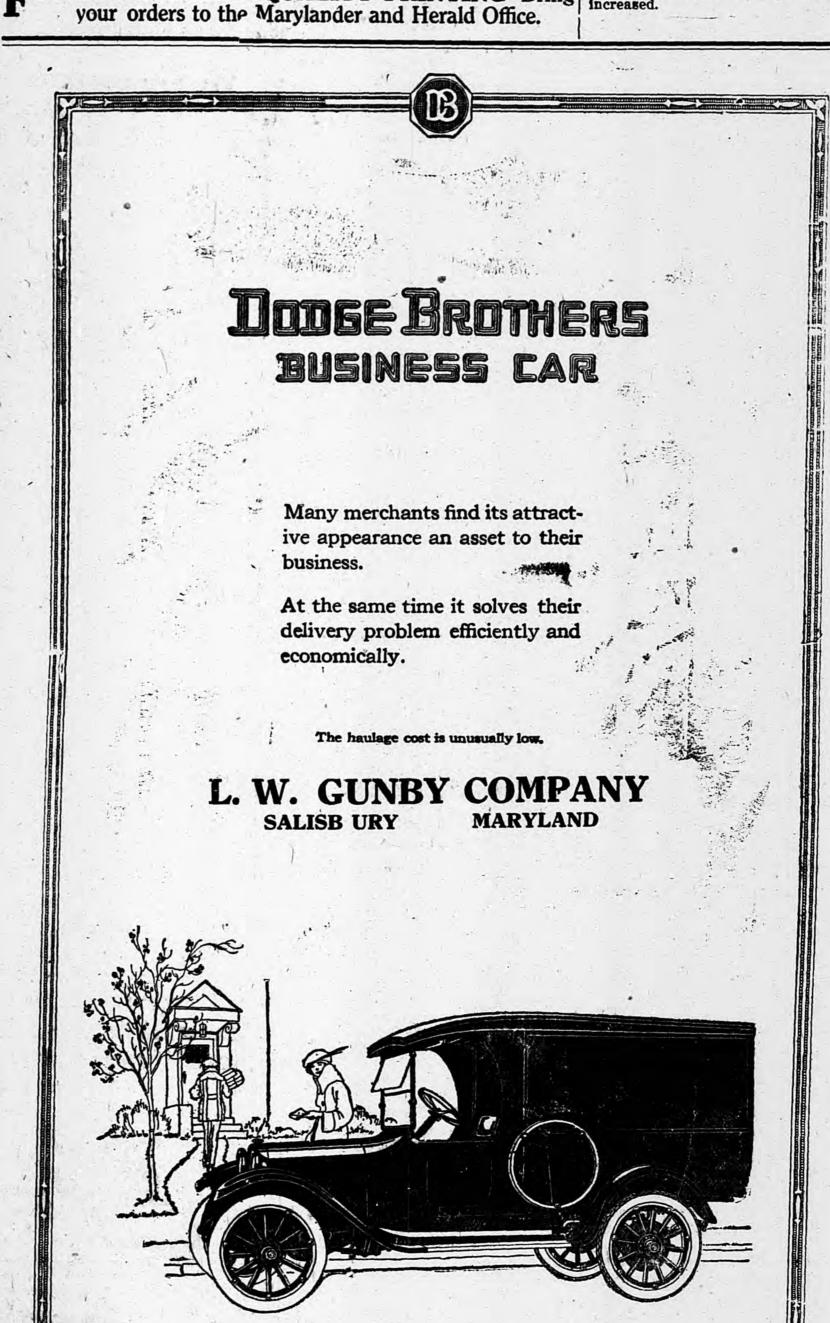

"Peter," she said, "when I think how your life has been devoted to invalids-first your old father, then the poor crippled sister-and how you were held there, tied to a village law practice, how you spent your evenings and ever spare hour in housekeeping duties, in those few rooms above your office, and how you never had a real home to enjoy, oh, Peter, my heart aches for you! "Peter, dear, do you suppose that this person who bought father's house and allowed him to rent it at a low rate, would still rent it to me? I might find something to do here. I might be able to manage. Will you find the person, Peter, and ask him?" Jeanne's friend smiled.

"I know the fellow," he answered slowly, "and I'm afraid that he would not rent again, Jeanne. You see, he's a lonely, old, sentimental bach who fancies the place because it is wrapped round with memories-memories of the only love he ever knew. He's astupid, old, near-sighted fellow. Jeanne, but the memories persist. He is even foolish enough to hope that his old dream of love may still-come true."

"Peter," the girl demanded, "did you buy our house—to help father?" "Yes, dear," Peter answered simply: "And I," asked Jeanne, shakily, "am,

I your dream, Peter? "Because if I am," she hastily answered his eager eyes, "oh, Peter, your dream-is true!"

EKING'S WALL OF DRAGONS

Mythical Creatures in Tiles That at First Sight Appear Surprisingly Lifelike.

One of the unexpected treasures of Peking is the dragon screen. It is parely mentioned in some of the guidebooks and not mentioned at all in thers. It is hidden behind a hillock in the winter palace grounds, and ninetenths of the visitors to Peking walk within a hundred yards of it and never dream of its existence.

It is a wall perhaps 20 feet high and a hundred long, faced completely with tile cast to represent nine lifesize dragons in bas relief, of various colors-yellow, purple, buff, maroon, orange, dancing gayly above emercid billows, against a pale blue sky.

Doubtless one should not speak of "life size" dragons, but these creatures of the screen are the alivest dragons one may ever hope to see: they give rise to the feeling that if a dragon lived he would be exactly like one of

Most sculptured Chinese dragons are lifeless, angular beasts; but here there is an almost un-Chinese vigor and audacity in the spring and twist of the lithe bodies. They leap, whirl, lunge and writhe until the spectator steps back, half afraid that they will come tumbling off the screen, striking at the unwary with their sturdy claws. There are, I believe, critics who teach that plastic art should never undertake to portray moments of activity. If this be correct, the dragons stand condemned; but if the sculptor may ever rightly give us life in its vivid, moving moments, here is a masterpiece,-James A. Muller in the National Geographic Magazine.

JEALOUS MAKERS OF LAWS

British Members of Parliament Put Rigid Restrictions on the Presence of "Strangers."

A stranger caught upon either floor of congress might not indeed be lynched. But in contrast with such impossible intrusion comes the odd disclosure of a recent parliamentary debate that, even during the formal days of Chatham, it was usual for outsiders to go forward in the house of commons "as far as a point beneath the rose in the center of the roof." Suggestions for enforcing the "standing order" against this liberty were discouraged at the time because "a violent struggle" would probably en-

The late discussion evolved from the current practice of admitting strangers, apparently through the laxity of attendants, into lobbies and into members' smoking rooms. But the lobbles have long been open to certain journalists, and the pictorial terrace beside the Thames has been a trysting place for high society whenever it decided to invite itself to tea.-London Mail.

The Blessing of Oil.

Where oil deposits are, there statesmen of a commercial type gather today to get possession of the "key" fuel of the hour and of tomorrow. But all phases of oil distribution are not as grim as the processes of its acquisition. We have long known of the uses to which the Chinese peasantry and urban dwellers have put the tin cans that the Standard Oil company's agents have sent throughout the empire with petroleum for the illumination of the house and shops of the people. Many of these substitutions have been comical; but we have not heard before of the disciples of Confucius using the tin cans for roofing of their temples. In Saloniki, however, the Mohammedans have been using the "containers" to replate the surface of their rotting mosque minarets. Now when the call to prayer goes forth, it not only summons the faithful to think of Allah, but also to remember the generosity of the managers of the Red Cross garage.-Advocate of Peace.

One Good Quality of Condor.

If the condor does not reach an untimely end by violence it is, according to all accounts, very long lived. The Indians of the Andes believe that he lives for a hundred years. The condors' homes seem just suited for birds so ugly and fierce. They build no nest, but the female selects some hollow in the barren rock that shall be large enough to shelter her from the strong winds while she is hatching her eggs.

Here, in the midst of desolation, the ugly little condors begin their cries for food, and after they are six weeks old begin attempting to use their wings, The parents show the only good trait they possess in their care for their young, feeding and training them to fly, so that in a few months they are able to hunt for themselves after the grim fashion of their elders.

Seems to Sustain Darwin.

Something like half a century ago a Dutch army surgeon, Eugene Dubois, unearthed in Java some bones. There was part of a skull, two molar teeth and the fragment of a thigh. Science has not yet solved to its own satisfaction the problem presented by these vestiges of a once living thing. But science is fairly well convinced that whatever the nature of the living thing for which they formed part of the frame it belonged to an era so remote that the interval must be counted in hundreds of thousands of years, perhaps 500,000 years, and scientific imagination has reconstructed from these bones a thing that approaches the human in its characteristics.—Exchange.

Shapes of Hair.

Chinaman has a round head. Every hair on his head is shaped likewise. That is to say, a cross-section of it (as seen under the microscope) is circular.

People of our own race have heads that are more or less oval in form, as your hat will show. The hairs of your head are likewise oval in section.

The negro has an oblong head. Call it rather an oblong square. Each individual hair of his kinky wool is oblong square in section, which, in fact, is the reason why it kinks.

Nobody knows why there should be this sort of correspondence between the shape of the head and the shape of the hair. It is just a fact in nature .--Philadelphia Ledger.

Effect of the Moon on Tides. The moon, often aided by the sun, pulls up the tide. It draws every object on the earth to it, but only the water, which is highly mobile, can readily respond. There are two tidal waves on earth, one beneath the moon, and one directly opposite on the other side. The cause of the tides on the opposite face is interesting. The moon pulls the earth away from the water, and lets a bulge of it hang partly re-'eased from the earth's control.

PEOPLES BANK of SOMERSET COUNTY PRINCESS ANNE MARYLAND THIS "ANGEL" WAS A KITE

But Superstitious Railroad Man Who Shot It Down Was Certainly Scared for a Time.

> "The shooting," says a Texas man, occurred some years ago on the Panhandle branch of the Santa Fe, and the hero of the tale was a superstitious engineer who believed in 'warnings.'

"One night he was rolling along at a good speed, when he saw a clear, white light, like a will-o'-the-wisp, dancing over the track a few hundred feet in front. He shut off steam and came to a stop as quickly as he could. The conductor and train crew came running up to the engine to see what was the matter.

"There is some one swinging a lantern across the track,' said the engineer, and the crew went ahead to investigate.

"'We can't find anyone,' reported the rear brakeman, and the engineer or perhaps because of Cecily's differpulled out again, but he went slowly, and in a few minutes stopped again. The crew went ahead once more to see what was the cause of the light. The conductor, who was a good shot, drew his revolver, and at his second shot there was a crash, a scream, and white came fluttering down from the clouds.

"The engineer was scared, You've shot an angel, sure,' he said to the conductor, with a face as pale as

"Investigation brought out the fact that a small boy, with a lantern tied to the tail of a kite, was the cause o' the trouble; but for a long time it teased the engineer to be asked about 'shooting angels.'"

HIGH PLACE FOR LEWIS CASS

Was Instrumental in Setting Up American Form of Government in Western Territories.

"Those who pushed the frontier westward were themselves the products of frontier conditions," says William B. Shaw in the American Review of Reviews. "Such a leader was Lewis Cass, a native of New Hampshire, who went out as a youth to the settlements that were soon to be organized into the state of Ohio, took part in lawmaking there, served as a volunteer officer in the war of 1812, was appointed governor of Michigan territory, and for many years was engaged in the difficult task of setting up an American form of government in regions that had barely emerged from the wilderness stage.

"That Lewis Cass was in after years a United States senator from Michigan, a member of cabinets, a diplomat and an unsuccessful aspirant for the presidency may have partially blinded us to the really important services that he rendered in the pioneer period of Michigan's history. Neither he nor any of the men of his day could have foreseen the strain that was to be put on the states created out of the old Northwest territory caused by the attempt to absorb vast populations of northern European blood into the citizenship.

"Lewis Cass lived to see great armies recruited among those newly made Americans to fight for the Union and the principles of nationality which he had himself defended throughout his career."

First Payment of Rent.

It would be hard to find exact records of the first rent paid. It is said that when the Germans conquered parts of Gaul, the land was parceled out to chiefs, lieutenants and private soldiers. In return the holders of the lands promised military service when needed. Some of the land was given to favorites, who were allowed to pay in money instead of service, and the system was established. Rent was certainly known in the days that Rome flourished, there being Latin names for rent under long leasehold tenure; rent of a farm, ground rent, rent of state lands and the annual rent payable for the right to the perpetual enjoyment of anything built on the surface of the land.

Ancient Bible.

A Bible belonging to Elizabeth Haddon, a Quakeress, printed in 1566, has been discovered in the East. The Haddon Bible is sixteen years older than the Reims Testament sometimes spoken of as "the oldest Bible." The Haddon Bible is an authentic "Great" Bible. It is also a "Treacle" Bible. Coverdale, the translator, rendering "The Prophecye of Jeremye," gave the reading "I am hevy and abafhed; is there no triacle at Gylyad." This in the King James modern version row." reads "balm in Gilead."

The Haddon Bible is indeed "Great." -Detroit News.

Statistics of mankind's ambulations, including young children and old persons, and taking into consideration the fact that nowadays there are the inclination and the facilities to ride more and walk less than our forefathers did, show that a fair estimate of the average distance walked during the 24 hours by the men, women and children of continental United States seems to be four miles. The postman and the policeman and the phew." messenger boy walk far more miles than four, so does the farmer, though the use of the tractor has taken some

False Colors

By HELEN CARR

(@, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.) Cecily smoothed the ruffles of her white lawn collar and cuffs as she entered the office. She hoped that this touch of dainty fineness might relieve the severity of the blue serge frock, which she was obliged to wear both in and out of season. New clothes and laundry bills were both so high that Cecily wondered wistfully if she would ever be able to earn more than a living wage. Employment in the business world was new to the heretofore sheltered country girl, and because of her shyness or her inability to adopt each new mode as it came, ence altogether, the girls of the office, used to the great hurrying city. and its ways, made no offer of friendliness to the one alone.

Ormond Wells held an important position in the office, and Cecily's wide eyes were not the only ones that the light went out, and something brightened at his approach. But Cecily seemed to be the only one who awakened no responsive gleam in his own. His invitations given with the air of a favor conferred, never included herself.

Mazie, the little planist across the boarding-house hall, who practiced hours a day in order to publicly perform at night-came to Cecily's aid. Ceclly was crying secretly when the kind-hearted Mazie happened to run in with an extra box of candy some one had given her. "It's the same dress and that same old hat," Mazie remarked, "that's getting on your nerves. "Wear my suit for a few days, Cissy, and my georgette waist and see how different you'll feel."

Cecily, who a few days before would have firmly refused this generous offer, now, to her own astonishment, yielded promptly.

The suit and the lovely waist were transforming. Ormond Wells regarded her as though he had not seen her before, and it was after his second short visit beside her desk that he asked with his usual smiling confidence, that she go with him to the company's banquet next evening. Cecily was delighted, triumph was

"You'll have to wear evening dress," he added casually.

Cecily accepted calmly.

Mazie herself eagerly made the suggestion, when Cecily confided to her the wonder of her invitation, and Cecily accepted the offer of a frock as calmly as she had agreed to go to In each camp there are three leading the banquet. After the accomplishment of her triumph, she would settle back again into the blue serge girlbut first she must "show" them.

And she did. Those who had ignored her could hardly recognize in the radiant creature of tulle and gold the small, meek person of the office. Ormond Wells had never been more courteously attentive. Cecily looking up at him through her long lashes, wondered if his interests never reached beyond business or person-

When the rest were dancing she slipped unobserved to a quiet corner. Realization of the part she was playing came to her poignantly. She was parading under false colors-that was the truth; and what had she gained by the deception? If Ormond Wells' approval had been won by wearing "borrowed plumes," she would but have to confess to the borrowing.

"Beg pardon," a pleasing voice remarked, "I thought no one was here and I wanted-to get away from all

A young man stood before her motioning toward the dancing throng and still lingered as though awaiting her permission to stay. The young man had a fine face and he wore a business suit contrasting with the men's dress suits beyond.

With quick sympathy Cecily understood. The young man, a company employee, no doubt, had been obliged to come to this party and had no dress suit to wear.

"Exactly," thought Cecily. "He is in the position I should have been in, without Mazie's kindness and Mazie's

HONORS NOT EASILY EARNED

Japanese Wrestlers Who Rise to Fame Are Deserving of the High Pasition They Attain.

Training for a Japanese wrestler is not easy. The training of our college boys for an athletic event is child's play in comparison. It is not unusual for a novice to be gashed and bleeding after being knocked about the hard gravel of a private arena. Young students come out at 4 on cold mornings and train until 8. Their fat and muscles are hardened by constant ramming at wooden posts and their heads are hardened by being pushed vigorously against walls. Yet it is a career any boy in Japan's villages aspires to who throws more than the average number of local rivals.

A champion today has 150 or 160 "hands" or devices at his disposal. The aim, a worthy one certainly, is the maximum of force with the minimum of disturbance.

Wrestlers are classified into nine grades, of which only the first three or four have professional importance. lights. The champion, the O-zeki, or second champion; the Seki-waki, or second assistant champion; the Komusubi, the assistant to the second assistant champion. The supreme champion is called the Tokodzuna, but there have only been a score of these since Japanese wrestling started in the prepagoda period.

How Burmese Women Smoke.

Merchants smoke their pipes from dawn until dark, in Korea, writes a correspondent. They squat down when they smoke, and as the stems of the pipes are 3 feet long, the bowl can rest on the ground. In Bethlehem the hookah is very popular among the women and it accompanies the morning and afternoon coffee-drinking hour. Several tubes extend from the water bowl through which the smoke passes in a cooling process, and the women gather about the hookah, each selecting a tube, and all drawing smoke from the common bowl. The Burmese maidens smoke a cigar 10 inches long and as fat as a good-sized candle and with a white paper covering. The longest pipes known are those used by natives of the Belgian Congo. These pipes have stems 10 or. 12 feet long, with small bowls. If matches were used to light them a friend would be needed to apply the flame, but the native gets his light by merely thrusting the bowl into his camp fire.

Bats and Bees.

For many years I have noticed when the lime trees are in flower the ground beneath them strewed with dead bees (the small bumble-bee), states a Scottish correspondent on nature matters. But I don't think this can be the work of bats, as suggested, for the bees are generally whole, outwardly, but their insides are eaten away. 'Can it be that there is some tiny insect in the lime flower which, fastening on them as they suck the honey, eats into their bodies, and causes them to drop down dead below the tree? I have never noticed any number of bats about the them out like that.

English Coal Miners Peculiar.

The occupation of coal-mining in England is said to pass very largely from father to son and from uncle to rephew. It is a calling to which one is dedicated, and more than any other class of workers the miners are a caste and a people to themselves. It was about a coal miner, or, as he used to be more generally called, a collier, that the famous story of the Broadwood grand used to be told-how the bought the plane out of his monstrous wages and, finding himself unable to play it, took umbrage and kicked it to pieces. The story was generally believed and much grieved over in middle-class Victorian society.

Sixteen Exploration Expeditions Are Now in Progress or in Contemplation.

MANY PROBLEMS TO BE SOLVED

Most Important Enterprise Is British Antarctic Expedition Headed by Commander John Lachlan Cope -Amundsen is Trying for North

New York.-Sixteen exploration expeditions are now in progress or in contemplation after four years of inactivity in this line of scientific research due to the great war. Most of these enterprises have been undertaken or projected since the armistice, and they recall the fact that mother earth still has important biological, zoological, geological, ethnological and meteorological problems to be solved.

One of the most important of these enterprises is the British Antarctic expedition, headed by Commander John Lachlan Cope, F. R. G. S., formerly of the British navy. It is financed for $750,000, includes five ships, 125 men, several airplanes and extensive wireless apparatus. The undertaking is to require five years and its objects are the circumnavigation of the Antarctic sea, a dash to the south pole, the locating of new whaling grounds and the discovery of supposedly rich gold, silver, coal and ruby fields.

Capt. Roald Amundsen, who discovered the south pole in 1911, left Nome, Alaska, last August in an attempt to reach the north pole. His ship, the Maud, had already spent nineteen months in the Arctic, north of Asia and Europe, and had successfully made the northeast passage. He expected the Maud to be locked in the ice pack and to drift toward the pole when the Arctic winter ended. In negotiating his way to Nome he was fre quently compelled to blast a path through the ice.

Captain Amundsen was last heard of off East cape, about 170 miles northwest of Nome in the Bering strait. The explorer, on account of high wages and scarcity of men, was handicapped by lack of help, his only companions being three sailors and an Eskimo

Other Prospects on Foot.

The other interesting expeditions projected or now under way are as Siberia-Capt. Axel Landmark and Capt. John Vatney, in a 50-foot power boat are on a 4,000-mile voyage to Kolyma river, using a primitive chart made in 1878 by Nordenskjold, a Swedish explorer on his voyage from Norway to Japan via the Arctic ocean.

Greenland-Knud Rasmussen, Danish explorer, who returned from the east coast late in 1919, after studying Eskimo tribes, is preparing for another expedition of five years' duration. Lange Koch, another Dane, is planning a scientific survey of North Greenland, his main purpose being to establish Danish sovereignty in that Africa-Four expeditions are in progress, namely, the Mackie ethnological expedition to Central Africa for the purpose of studying the Bahima, one of the chief pastoral tribes of Ankole, a district west of Uganda; the British natural history of museum expeditions to the west coast and the Jeb-Maria mountains; the duke of Abruzzi's effort to find the sources of the Webi Shebeli river, which flows from Abyssinia through Italian Somaliland into the Indian ocean, and the entomological tour of the Belgian portion of Tanganyika and the eastern Congo, by T. A. Barns, who explored the Ituri and Semliki forests, finding a strange race of pigmy savages, as well as gathering a wonderful collect tion of moths and butterflies.

Baffin Land-Donald P. MacMillan, who was with Admiral Peary plans to start next year to explore one of the richest fields in the far north. He expects to establish a camp 700 miles south of Etah in Northwest Greenland, where his Crocker Land expedition passed four winters. He will attempt to circumnavigate Baffin Land and penetrate 1,500 miles of its western Nova Zembla-Dr. Olaf Holtedahl of Christiania university is organizing a northwestern natural science and geological expedition to this country and plans to start next summer.

Will Explore Amazon,

The Amazon-Exploration of this great river to be undertaken by a large party of American scientists, headed by Dr. Henry H. Rusby of Columbia university. The party expects to leave early in January and to traverse more than 1,000 miles of almost virgin land in the upper reaches of the river basin. Dr. Rusby is to be accompanied by Dr. David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford, Jr. university and Dr. Carl H. Eingemann of the University of Indiana, who are to study fish and | ton in her mouth and it slipped into reptiles: Dr. Ruthven of the University of Michigan, who is to study frogs, her stomach, and it was ejected by and Dr. Edward Kromers of the Uni- vomiting. There was an injury to the versity of Wisconsin, and Prof. A. H. throat passages, which developed Gill of the Massachusetts Institute of blood poisoning, and der h resulted.

Technology, who will investigate seed and volatile oils.

Ecuador and Peru-Collections of flora and fauna are now being gathered for the American Museum of Natural History in New York by Capt. Harold E. Anthony and George K.

Pacific Islands-Solution of the origin of the Polynesian race is one of the objects of a survey of the Pacific Islands planned at a recent conference of scientists at Honolulu under the auspices of the Pan-Pacific Union, representing the United States, Canada, Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Hawaii, the Philippines and Japan. An expedition will be sent to the South seas for this purpose by Yale, Harvard and other institutions.

China and Tibet-The third expedition, backed by a fund of $250,000, is soon to start from Central Asia under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews, associate curator of mammals in the American Museum of Natural History, New York. The Chinese government is expected to co-operate with this enterprise.

Committees of Women Formed in Great Britain and America to Promote Friendly Relations.

London.-With the object of promoting closer friendly intercourse between British and American women, a women's committee of the English-speaking union has been formed under the presidency of Viscountess Bryce, wife of the one-time ambassador to the United States.

Arrangements are being made to provide hospitality and entertainment for American women visiting Eugland and to co-operate with corresponding committees in the United States.

The president for the United States of the English-speaking union is Mrs. William H. Taft. The new women's committee has among its members Lady Violet Astor, Viscountess Gladstone, the countess of Kerry, the countess of Reading and a lot of other women prominent in London society.

Labor Is Said to Have Adopted Tactics to Gain Ends in Various Parts of Country.

Calcutta.-Indian labor for the last two months has been adopting sabotage tactics to gain its ends in various parts of the country.

A notable example is one in Madras, where the provincial government has just issued a communique in reference to the railway disaster last month, where 14 people were killed and 21 injured. The disaster, in the opinion of the government, is the seventh out of eight cases of sabotage, committed between August 14 and October 21.

Dog Saves Life of Baby Hanging From Bridge

La Salle, Colo.-Teddy is only a common dog, boasting neither beauty nor blue blood, and the possessor of only three good legs, but he saved the life of his constant companion, a two-year-old boy. The dog's persistent barking attracted the mother's attention, and she went to investigate.

About 100 yards from the house runs the Milton canal. The baby had undertaken to cross a little foot-bridge and lost his balance. But in falling, his dress had caught on the bridge in such manner that it held and strangled him. First aid methods were applied, and in a few hours he was able to rejoin his faithful friend.

Several National Organizations - Are Co-operating To Encourage Habits Of Systematic Saving And Wise investment.

Concerted efforts to teach the American people the importance of putting every dollar in the nation at work in 1921 are to be made during the week beginning January 17, 1921. This will be nationally observed as "Thrift Week." Under the general direction of the Young Men's Christian Association, organizations interested in bank savings, insurance, home building and sound investment securities will carry to each part of the nation the gospel of "Work and Save." A program of unusual interest also will be observed by the Young Women's Christian Association, which already has done such excellent work along the lines of the proposed campaign.

The Savings Division of the United States Treasury Department is much interested in "Thrift Week," and through the Government Savings Organization in this Federal Reserve District is preparing to give valuable co-operation. It is issuing a pamphlet entitled "Boss Your Dollars," for the use of boys and young men in industries. The key-note of this pamphlet is found in the statement-"The time to begin to save is the day you begin

One of the great needs of America today, bankers and students of economy agree, is the working dollar. Countless millions are sleeping lazily between mattresses and in bureau drawers and in the old broken tea-pot on the mantle. It is the purpose of "Thrift Week" to wake up these drowsy dollars and put them to work to increase active capital for the benefit of every individual and every industry in the country and for the nation at large.

As a means of stimulating the sav-TRIES SABOTAGE IN INDIA ings movement the United States Treasury Department will offer during 1921 two new savings securities in addition to the 25-cent Thrift Stamp, the $5 War Savings Stamp and the $100 and $1,000 Treasury Savings Certificates. The new offerings are a $1 non-interest bearing Treasury Savings Stamp and a $25 Treasury Savings Certificate which will bear interest at the rate of per cent. compounded quarterly if held until maturity, that is, five years. These new issues, it is believed, will not only help the savings movement in the public schools where it is already in such high favor, but they will serve to stimulate the work along other lines, and it is to give the movement a strong impetus that the United States Treasury Department plans to The strike of stevedores in this city | co-operate so fully in the national "Thrift Week" program.

Wounded By Accidental Discharge of His Duty

General Stonewall Jackson was a kindly man but devotion to duty was his watchword He was a soldier first and a considerate gentleman afterwards. For instance, a captain on his staff had roused his ire more than once by sins of omission along the line of duty. Just before the battle of Gaines' Mill, the captain's services were required to carry an important dispatch, but he could not be found at headquarters. An orderly, sent to search for him, reported he had been wounded.

"Wounded!" exclaimed Major Elwood, another member of the staff. "Why there has been no fighting since I saw him late last night."

Stonewall's beard began to bristle. "Captain Blank was undoubtedly wounded by the accidental discharge of his duty," he snorted.

Thousands of Americans today are fooling with the "unloaded" gun of duty. It is the duty of every man to provide for his future and for the safety and happiness of those dependent upon him, to lay aside regularly a certain portion of the yield of his hands and brain. Properly discharged, that duty is a weapon of safety and protection. Improperly dischargedlike the "unloaded" gun-it may cripple you for life and ruin the future of those dear to you.

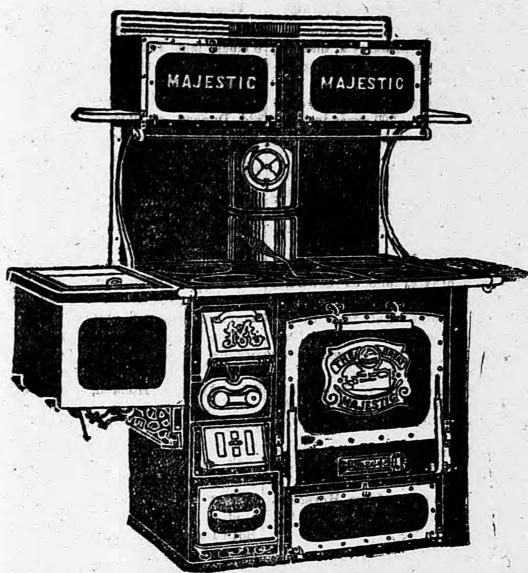

The only safe way to discharge that duty is through sound, profitable, regular investment. Such investments are now ready at hand. The United States Government will continue to issue the Government Savings Securi-A gain of $126,303,656 was shown ties which have been the safeguard of country since 1917. Stonewall "seen his duty and he done it." If you see your duty, you can discharge it through regular saving and investment in government securities. Discharge your duty but don't do it accidentally, like Stonewall Jackson's young captain.

There are no habits that so surely lead to real success as those of Saving; no power is so great as the power of thrift.

Learn to SAVE money. A part of what you make regularly put into War. Savings Stamps will in a short time start you on the road to success.

War Fails to Jar Conceit of Teuton, Says Observer of Long Experience.

Unable to Understand How They Are Detested-The German of Today is to All Intents and Purposes the Same as in 1913.

London. - Although Berlin has changed since 1914, the German mind remains unchanged. Neither the holocaust of dead nor the crash of thrones has shaken Germany out of her selfconceit, according to what G. Valentine Williams, formerly correspondent of Reuter's Agency in Berlin, tells the London Daily Mail.

"The German mind," he says, "does not seem to have altered.

"Albeit sadly puzzled to account for the utter break-down of the entire German system, in his outlook on life the German of 1920 is to most intents and purposes the German of 1913. In a world which to British eyes is strangely changed by five years of World war the mental isolation of the German is absolute. To talk to him makes you feel that the German of today is the loneliest creature on God's earth.

"Yet with heavy deliberation he is communing with himself to ascertain the causes of his defeat. But he is not examining his conscience.

"Any Berlin bookshop will show you the chaos prevailing in the German

Nothing of the Present.

"Professor Steinach's rejuvenation experiments, Einstein's theory of light, Maynard Keynes and Norman Angell on the Versailles Peace-both books in German translations and prominently displayed-treatises on spiritualism, atheism, free love, and the like-works of this description stand side by side with a mass of frankly pornographic literature. Here will you find reasoned explanations for the past, complicated schemes for the future, but nothing practical to deal with the problems of the present. And above all, no contrition for Germany's crime against "The German surveyed the world from his castle of militarism. Now that it has collapsed he is left floundering in a sea of doubts and fears. The Germans with whom I have spoken expect us to hold them guiltless of the past because, they say, they have rid Germany of her military caste."

"They have, it is true, expelled the bloody-minded blunderers surrounding that eminent nonentity. William the Second-rater, because they failed to keep their promise to establish German world-domination. But the German people is governed by the herd 4 instinct, and the expulsion of the Old Gang in the circumstances of military defeat and home panic in which the Hohenzollerns were sent away requires weightier evidence of a change of heart that is forthcoming in Germany today, if it is to be accepted as a proof of the death of German militarism.

Blank Indifference.

"Talk to a Frenchman of any class, and you will, sooner or later, come upon a well-banked but fiercely smouldering Republican ardor. Talk to a German about his government and you will find, at the best, lukewarm interest; at the worst, resentful ridicule towards the German Republic.

"The average attitude is one of blank indifference. The German man in the street never thought for himself. He does not do so today. The question of the future is, what party will emerge from the present chaos to do his thinking for him?

"The Germans are perfectly willing to forgive us for the war. They talk glibly about 'this unhappy war' with the air of a man making perfunctory excuses for some social lapse. In some may be detected in addition a little air of condescension in speaking of the late unpleasantness as though to draw attention to their magnanimity in accepting the war as an inevitable catastrophe, 'an act of God,' as the insurance policies say. And even today I find that the great majority of Germans have no idea of the abhorrence in which the very name German is held in the Anglo-Saxon countries and in France and Belgium."

"LIVE UP TO" THE CHILDREN

Writer Condemne Old Fashioned Idea of Repression and Stern Punish. ment for Trivial Offenses.

It seems to me a great mistake to "live down to" children. They are capable of understanding and responding to deep and fine thoughts and feelings. Never from the first did we criticize or humiliate our boys in any way. We gave them credit always for the high and right motive, and suspended judgment till they had told their side. But if they were wrong they were not punished. The fact that they had fallen below what had been expected of them was punishment enough. A certain standard of conduct was thus established that they longed always to realize. They were able, even then, to see the beauty of certain qualities and the ugliness of others. It was lovely to see them trying to conform to the habit in the household, of unfailing courtesy and unselfishness and restraint. They often failed. They often showed their temper. But they grew to be more and more ashamed of their failures.

Character cannot be built from the outside. Coercion does not make for strength-only for compliance. That, it seems to me, is the great mistake some parents make. They exact obedience when they should instill princi-

When the guiding hand is lifted, so nany are left with no deep convictions-principles to shape their destiny-but impulses. They may be good, they may be bad, as life plays upon their emotions and desires. To trust to them for guidance is like going out upon a stormy sea in a tiny craft at the mercy of tossing waves and wind. -Katron Trousdale, in Christian Her-

Why "ActorsHate Cats." Speaking at the Aternational Women's Franclise clul in London, Miss Horniman, the Englih theatrical manager, told some enteraining stories of theatrical experienes. Actors can stand a good deal, se said, but they hate a cat, for they how that as long as it is on the stage he audience can look at nothing else. Miss Horniman had some amusing stories of the Gayety cats. Trixie, who was killed on the scene of her polic triumphs by the fall of the safer curtain, once spoiled the last act of Hindle Wakes" by getting under a thle where the actors could not see hr, but the audience could, and cheerally pretending to chase a monse. Then strolling across to the stage fe, she turned from it with disdain ad settled herself for warmth among the footlights. Another cat intruded into a quiet scene of tragic farewd and led the short-sighted lover on a futile chase among the overturning turniture. Radio-Active Lead.

At least two kinds of lead exist, writes Prof. Theodore V. Richards in Science. One, the ordiary metal disseminated throughout he world; another, a form of lead pparently produced by the decomposition of uranium, radium being on of the intermediate products. If ve leave out of consideration the probable inessential difference in radio adivity, the two kinds are very closely if not exactly alike in every respect, excepting atomic weight, density and immediately related properties involving weight, as solubility. Tiorium lead appears to be a third variety, with similar relations. Shall we call these substances different elements, or the same?

European Ju-Jitsu.

Jiu-Jitsu is supposed to come from Japan, but an art of self-defense virtually identical with it was taught in Europe during the seventeenth century. Its principles are expounded in a book by one Nicholas Peters, published at Amsterdam in 1674, which bears the long explanatory title: "The art of wrestling, and how one can protect oneself in all kinds of quarrels that may occur; how one can with agility and rapidity repel all unfair attacks, and meet one's adversary with science."

WORLD STAMP EXPERTS MEET

More Than $250,000 Worth of Rare Specimens on Exhibition at Berlin Sale.

Berlin.-Philatelic experts from all parts of the world came to Berlin to attend the great stamp sale just held here, which it is claimed has a wider range than any ever before held in Europe.

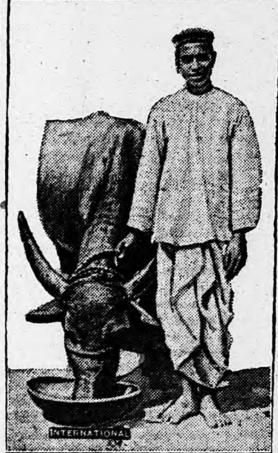

The total number of lots was 5,387 and the value at upset prices exceeded $250,000 nominally.

During the first day's sale there was a rush for rare Argentine, Brazilian and Bolivian issues.

United States issues included the only known canceled copy of the "Franklin Carriers," brown orange error of 1851, the Livingstone (Alabama) 5-cent blue of 1861, and three blocks of the new U. S. A. 90-cent and 30-

The gem of the American collection was a postal envelope of the Confederate States of America bearing on the right hand a 5-cent stamp in black and on the left a Confederate seaman nailing the "Stars and Bars" to the mast.

ITALY HAS BREAD PROBLEM

Working Classes of the Country Refuse to Shoulder the Burden of Increased Cost.

Rome.—The Italian government is facing an almost unsolvable problem in the question of the cost of the nation's bread.

During and since the war the price of bread was kept down artificially. the government paying $1,000,000,000, and even lately $1,250,000,000 yearly, as the difference between the actual cost of the flour and the price paid by the consumer.

The price of 21-5 pounds of ordinary bread used to be equivalent to nine cents, or of a finer quality 11 or 12 cents; now the price for the same quantity of inferior bread is 21 cents, and the Italian working classes utterly refuse to pay the balance, which would increase the cost to them to 40 cents.

The Wardrobe

By AGNES G. BROGAN

(©, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

It was a fine old wardrobe of shining mahogany. The little lady who sat retrospectively before it touched its sides caressingly, as she peopled the upper room of the big, shabby house with memories. And now and again to the old lady's eyes came a whimsical light, and to her faded lips a smile. For back in the years in this same old house, which was her home, she saw a vision of children, romping up the wide stair in a game of hide-and-seek, and one little breathless maid entering this cent issues of 1869, with flags inserted. old room to elude her pursuer, had slipped into the wardrobe as a hiding place. But one gold-brown curl had caught in the wardrobe door and so, laughing and triumphant, the boy in chase found her-and kissed her as he drew her forth. Worthy Lane, rocking to and fro, laughed softly at the memory. He was such a daring boy, that David of long ago, and yet, withal, gentle and kind. What a small tyrant she had been, and how he had suffered through her caprices. There was the year that she was going away to school, and the big house was lighted from basement to attic, while she, fine and important in her crimson merino gown, had taken her old playfellow up to the guestroom during the evening to show him her new party frock. Here it hung, in the old polished wardrobe, fresh from Miss Paisley's needle; and David sighed as he praised it, saying:

"Some lucky fellow will fall in love with you in that frock, Worthy," and some lucky fellow had.

Rocking now, meditatively, Worthy wondered if Henry Lane had been, after all, triumphant in his choice. She had faithfully tried to be a good wife to Henry, and succeeded at least in keeping from him the knowledge of her own mistake. For, short as their life had been together, in the depths of the girl's miserable heart was always a haunting realization of love for another. She had never dreamed that her true love was David's-David surely was but playfellow, companion and

It was only after her betrothal that the amazing consciousness dawned upon her-as she was showing David her wedding gown. The wardrobe had never borne a lovelier burdenthe silvery brocade gleamed in the lamplight, and David, white and silent, had turned away. It was not like him, she thought, disappointedly, to be unsympathetic. Then Worthy knew. She could almost see, now, the wedding brocade still hanging there in the twilight; but it was but a shadow vision, after all. The woman came abruptly to the matter-of-fact present. How much might she hope to get for the wardrobe at the antique shop? Worthy had gone to the nearby town to view an Old Ladies' home. She had saved a thousand dollars and residence in the home would be apparently the best solution of her old age. One may not live forever without friendly care. There were no younger descendants that she might turn to; so, in cheerful resignation, Worthy laid her plans.

Then she arose briskly to light the massive old-fashioned chandelier-the gentleman of the antique shop had offered to stop on his homeward drive to inspect the wardrobe. He had listened kindly, this courteous old man, to Worthy's request, and his keen, dark eyes noted the mended places in her gray gloves, while the wistfulness of her voice strangely stirred him. He was surprised at his own suggestion of stopping at the house. He was an odd, gentle creature, this collector of antiques; it was known that the shop was not continued because of its sales value—the owner was independently rich, and as charitable as retiring.

When he stood before Worthy Lane's wardrobe his sharp eyes roved about the old room, coming back again wonderingly to rest on her face. In her excitement two young pink spots glowed in Worthy's cheeks and she put up a slim hand to brush back a vagrant white curl-the very ghost of the curl that had fastened itself long ago in the wardrobe door.

"I do believe," said the old man, slowly, "and surely I cannot be mistaken, that this is Worthy Lane. I remember your home," he went on, as she stood making no reply.

"I remember the old wardrobe, and -" he laughed softly-"I remember you. I am David!"

Still Worthy could find no words. "I supposed that you remained away. I did not know that you ever came Paris.—A French textile expert back. Your husband—is dead?"

Then, seated in the room of memories, Worthy answered all his gentle questioning-told him all that had He is searching for funds to prove been. And all at once it was not an David, understanding and true, and

THE INCOME TAX RETURNS

The time for the annual struggle with income tax returns has now come and for people whose business is at all complicated it is a bothersome task. It is made worse by the remoteness of the federal government and the fact that if errors are made, it may be difficult or tedious to get them corrected.

But while the job of getting out these returns may be an unwelcome one, everyone should see the necessity of making a fair and honest report. The man who tries to cheat Uncle Sam by unfairly manipulating his income figures is just about the same type as the yellow slackers who dodged the draft. He is not willing to take up his end of the load of government and he shifts off part of it to people who may be less well able than he to carry the load.

EQUALIZING EVERYBODY

The world has been built up on the principle that everyone should be able to keep what he individually produces. This creates inequalities, but it vastly stimulates production and encourages hard work and initiative.

The wage system now established in many trades as the result of which a group of workers will all get the same pay, regardless of what they individually produce, is apt to work against the interest of the community. This system has the effect to discourage personal initiative.

The bright and ambitious fellow feels it is no use for him to perfect himself Prominent among the bank clearings in his trade or to make any special effort as he would not get any added return for it. On the the other hand the indifferent worker feels he is sure of his standardized wage.

The excuse commonly given for this system is that only on the basis of This is a cold and hard world and but standard wages for everybody can the very few workshops so far have been wage earners make favorable deals with their employer. It is claimed that if exceptionally good workers are given better pay, then their interest in not identical with that of the less efficient ones, hence the wage workers are not able to act as a unit in dealing with the have to stand up, but the office seekers employer. This, it is claimed, destroys their bargaining power.

This might be a good argument if pay advances came out of the employer. But they do not. He passes them over to the public. Thus as a result of equalization of wages production is held down and price advances in the general cost of iving offset any increases gained in

Only by efficient production can prosperity be secured for everyone. And efficient production only occurs where the worker gets a special reward for exceptionally efficient work.

Fire last Thursday afternoon destroyed the colored church building and parsonage owned by the trustees of Handy Memorial Church, at Marion Station.

The fire originated in the roof of the dwelling occupied as a parsonage and when discovered had gained considerapostponed owing to stormy weather, will be held January 26th. If the weather ble headway and could not be got under control. A strong west wind swept the flames to the roof of the church building, about 50 feet away, and for a time it was feared nearby dwellings, which were on fire several times from flying embers, also would be destroyed.

> A few church pews and musical instruments were saved, but the church building was destroyed. Very few of the household effects owned by the pastor were saved. The property loss is estimated to be about $15,000, which is almost covered by insurance.

WARNS AGAINST FOREIGN HUBBY

Mme. Tartoue Hopes American Girls Will Profit by Her Unfortunate Experience.

PORTRAIT PAINTER

Says European Men Are Not Brought Up With the Ideals of Marriage and Womanhood That Amer-

New York.—"If American girls who are contemplating marriage with foreigners will only listen to me and take warning from my unfortunate experience with a distinguished foreigner, to whom I gave my love and devotion, I will feel repaid in a measare for the ordeal through which have passed and the humiliation must now endure.

"Most men from the continental European countries are not brought up with ideals of marriage and wom- is the plan that all members of "The anhood which American girls are taught to believe American men have. They make bad husbands for an new $1 stamps each week. American girl, and my advice to girls is to pick out an American for a husband." That is what Mme. Pierre Tartoue, wife of the noted portrait painter, said in discussing her marriage and her suit for separation just started.

Mr. Tartoue is said to be in the Adirondacks. His studio is said to have been sublet to Rene Van Lennap, a friend.

Since Mme. Tartoue departed from her home over a month ago in the middle of the night, following a series of alleged sensational incidents in and near the studio, she has been living in seclusion with her mother, Mrs. R. Bengue Barnett.

Tells of Persecution. Light on the nature of her disagreement, with her husband was shed by Mme. Tartoue during her interview. She said:

"The persecution to which I was subjected by two elderly women will be made public during the trial.

"I lent myself to Pierre for publicity purposes much against my own inclination. He told me it would help

"I lent him money as well, as most American girls who marry foreigners find they are obliged to do for the sake of preserving their homes and saving their husbands from financial difficulties. My family and friends have reason to know intimate details concerning these financial transactions.

"I sacrificed myself on the altar of Pierre's art and I soon discovered he did not appreciate it. This is my attitude toward my husband. have no animosity in my heart, only "After I was Pierre's wife he constantly told me I was no longer an American woman. He said I was under the French law, because I had married a French citizen. He told me I would have to hear half the expense of our establishment and that French women had no rights.

Helped in His Work.

"Pierre told me he was madly in love with me. I was madly in love with him. He told me and told my friends I was the most beautiful American girl. He told me I was an inspiration to him in his art. Believing implicity in him and in his genius, I helped him every way I could. I even posed for him for portraits of myself, and I posed for the hands and gowns of some of his best portraits. Among those were the portraits he painted last year of Mrs Frederick Brooks of New York, Mrs. Harold Brooks and Miss Ruth Shoelhopf of Buffalo.

"After he had painted a portrait of me with my wedding veil over my head, some critics told him it was one of the best pieces of work he had ever done. When he painted the "God of Happiness," which now hangs in the Alfred I. du Pont home on Long Island, I helped him with my any other means. And the United suggestions.

"I found, however, that Pierre did not appreciate me. With my own hands I used to cook him little studio dinners so that at the end of the day, when he was tired out from painting, he would not have to go out for dinner. Those were halcyon days when Pierre and I were by ourselves night after night in our studio. I could hardly believe the thing was real, it was so ideal.

"We were married October 14, 1919, and I will never forget the promises he made that day, for he did not keep a single one of them."

DOLLAR A WEEK SAVINGS CLUE

Everyone is Asked To Become Member Of Thrifty Organization By Investing For Future Prosperity-Motto is "Work And Save."

Every person in this state, and is the nation for that matter, is invited to join "The Dollar a Week Club." The motto of this organization is "Work and Save," and its purpose is to put idle dollars to work where they can accomplish a real good. It is the hope of the United States Treasury Department, which is behind the movement for the organization of the nation-wide campaign, that it soon will have hundreds of thousands of mem-

It is the idea of the Treasury Department that these clubs can be organized in mills, factories and other industrial plants; in colleges, normal schools and high schools and in community centers generally. The government, during 1921, will issue a special $1 Treasury Savings Stamp. It Bollar a Week Club" pledge themselves to buy at least one of these

While the $1 stamp, like the 25-cent Thrift Stamp, does not bear interest, the government offers a $25 full interest-bearing Treasury Savings Certificate for twenty $1 stamps, plus a small additional amount of cash. This offer, it is hoped, will add great stimulus to the government savings movement and will be the means of inducing many people to acquire the valuable habits of thrift and saving.

War Savings Stamps (worth $5 when they mature), will be issued throughout the year, as also will the $100 and $1,000 Treasury Savings Certificates. During January of the new year the $5 stamp may be had for $4.12. It will increase in value 1 cent each month. The January price of the new $25 Treasury Savings Certificate will be $20.60, its value increasing 5 cents a month. The $100 Treasury Savings Certificate may be bought during Jannary for $82.40. Its monthly increase in value is 20 cents. All these government savings securities may be had from postoffices or through banks.

CENTIMES and CENTS

France, say returned travelers, is barren soil for Bolshevism. Its people are concerning themselves with rehabilitating the nation. American economists ascribe the incredible progress of the French toward restoration to the universality of property ownership, the determination to work, to live on something less than they produce and devotion of the surplus to making France its glorious self of pre-war days.

Whatever America may have, it should possess these French virtues more abundantly. The nation should perpetuate itself. Since poverty, growing out of waste, industrial, individual and financial inefficiency, creates dissatisfaction, the soil in which anarchy and communism thrive like the noisome weeds they are, it is a wise, patriotic and foresighted statesmanship that plans to prevent their recurrence in the next genera-

Such is the basis of the government's "EARN, SAVE AND INVEST" campaign. It seeks to make each boy and girl in school this year a convert to the doctrine that all must work, live within their income and invest their savings to aid the nation and themselves. French millions who saved a few centimes a day, rather than French millionaires, are responsible for France's strength in peace as in

They have, for generations, invested in government securities, and when American millions have that habit, the future of the United States will be assured more incontestably than through States has made easy the formation of such habits, as it offers securities of its own in denominations within the reach of all.

While the amount of money that you SAVE is important in itself, the biggest thing after all is that you have learned how to save.

Money SAVED each month will help you buy a home. If you start SAVING now you will be on the road to independence in a short time.

How John Dory Got His Spots, The dory is one of the mackerel family with a highly notable ancestry. He has many peculiarities of form and color, but none more marked than the two vivid red spots on his sides. Tradition says that it was from a dory that St. Peter took the coin with which to pay the tribute, and that the two spots mark the place where he held the fish between his thumb and finger.

Tearless for the Spartans. The "tearless battle" was fought 868 B. C., when a force of Arcadians and Argives endeavored to cut off a Spartan army, under Archidamus III, in a narrow defile in Laconia. They were repulsed with heavy loss, and not a single Spartan was killed, whence the engagement came to be called the "tearless battle."-Literary Digest.

Long Range Fire. A gossip is never willing to repeat unkind remarks to your face. We recently heard one when accused of this try to justify herself by saying: "Gossip, madam, is a social attack conducted on the approved principles of modern warfare-you are not supposed to see the person at whom you are shooting."-Boston Transcript.

Famous Old Pohick Church. Pohick church, Fairfax county, Virginia, seven miles from Mount Vernon, was built in 1773 from plans drawn by General Washington, who was a vestryman for 20 years. The church was used as a stable during the Civil war, but has lately been restored and is now practically in its original condition.

Remarkable Family. A woman with six young "hopefule" in assorted sizes entered the day coach. She selected a double seat and occupied one-half herself. The oldest child lay down on the opposite seat and the other five sat on his prostrate body. By and by the conductor appeared, and upon being handed one full-fare ticket he sized up the little group and said: "You'll have to pay for some of these children. What is the age of the oldest?" To which the lady answered tartly: "Go on with ye; the oldest one is under five."

Man Cannot Sense Coming Rain. It is somewhat extraordinary, but man is the only animal that cannot naturally perceive approaching rain. All other animals show uneasiness when rain is coming. At such times dogs get restless, cats sneeze and wash their ears, frogs croak with a loud, harsh noise, owls screech, peacocks scream and ducks and geese are unusually noisy. This is said to be due to the relaxation of their nerves by the damp air, which makes them

The Poles have remained singularly free from eastern influence. Their melodic invention is sometimes rather limited, but their tunes are always wonderfully embellished, and they often make use of difficult intervals which would seem to be more suitable for an instrument than for the voice. The effect of these songs is sad but full of interest and in hearing them it is easy to realize that Chopin was a thoroughly "national" composer.

John Willis Griffiths was the man who revolutionized the science of merchant shipbuilding and naval architecture. In 1841 he appeared before the American institute in New York and proposed a model for a new ship. He succeeded in interesting William Aspinwall, one of New York's China trade princes, who in 1842 signed a contract to build a ship of 750 tons according to Griffiths' designing.

The ship was completed in January, 1845, and named the Rainbow. The Rainbow sailed for China in February, and was back home again in September to reward her owners with 200 per cent over what she had cost.

John Willis Griffiths was born in New York in 1809, and died there in 1882. He was the inventor of the trap style of hull construction; the builder of the United States steamship Princeton, the first twin screw oceangoing vessel, and was the inventor of the process of bending ship timber in a vacuum. In 1851 he published privately a treatise on naval architecture which attracted comparatively little attention in this country, but its merits were recognized in England, and he became a lecturer in Edinburgh university on naval architec-

Sheep-Raising Old Industry. Sheep raising is perhaps the oldest of all industries, for it was practiced even before agriculture. Wool is a product of cultivation or domestication, for there are no wild animals which closely resemble the wool-bearing sheep, Floyd W. Parsons, in the Saturday Evening Post, says that with the discovery that cloth could be made from wool came an effort to improve the fleece by selection and breeding. The early Romans were most successful in this pursuit, and their endeavors along this line resulted in developing a fleece of great fineness. After the conquest of the Iberian peninsula, Roman sheep were introduced into Spain, where they so greatly improved the native flocks that even during Roman supremacy Spanish wool led the worlds markets, a prestige held for many centuries.

Dinner for Dyspeptics, Sir Henry Holland, the late Lord Knutsford's father, gave what is not too common-a really pleasant piece of medical advice. He recommended his dyspeptic patients to go out to dinner and eat made dishes.

Herbert Spencer, one of the recipients of this advice, found it to a considerable extent justified.

"The effects of agreeable emotions are often surprising," says the valetudinarian philosopher. "I have had many experiences of the fact that dyspepsia, so far from being necessarily exacerbated by dining out, may even be cured, notwithstanding many dietetic imprudences, if the social surroundings are such as to yield great pleasure."-London Chronicle.

Bird Eats 1,000 Bugs.

A cliff swallow will eat a thousand flies, mosquitoes, wheat-midgets or beetles that injure fruit trees in a day and therefore is to be encouraged, says the American Forestry association of Washington.

This bird is also known as the cave swallow because it plasters its nest on the outside of a barn or other building up under the eaves. Colonies of several thousand will build their nests together on the side of a cliff.

These nests shaped like a flattened gourd or water bottle are made of bits of clay rolled into pellets and lined with straw or feathers. This bird

Let Your Voice Be Heard

Farmers sometimes have been hampered by ill-advised action in Washington. Congress and department heads have seemed out of touch with rural thought and deeds. Other interests have absorbed too much of the attention of national officials.

This has happened because the single farmer can seldom make his voice heard. It is time that Congress gave more heed to the great agricultural population. And when farmers' wants are expressed through a common spokesman, backed by an increasing number of farmers, Washington must listen and act.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE PAST Peculiar Beliefs That Not So Very Many Years Ago Had Almost Universal Credence.

A reader furnishes us with a list of old superstitions which were part of our folk lore in this part of the country before we had to have folk lore societies to preserve this sort of

Probably most of us are superstitious about the number 13, just as people were a long time ago. Our own superstitions will amuse a subsequent generation, as those recalled by our reader amuse us. Only a subsequent generation can safely laugh at superstitions. Socrates was put to death for laughing at some of the superstitions of the Greeks. Let us, then, laugh at these and take the superstitions of our own time as seriously as we please.-St. Louis Post Dispatch.

PEAK WHERE NOAH LANDED

Mount Ararat, in Northwestern Persia, Is Now Part of a Recently Created "Buffer" State.

Youthful students of sacred history, if they will look up the map of the near East, will find in the extreme northwestern part of Persia a mountain peak marked Mount Ararat. That should give them a fine starting point, for they will remember that it was on Mount Ararat that Noah, in the Biblical account landed. Mount Ararat is the loftiest peak in Azerbaidjan, 17,000 feet above sea level, but if they have neglected news from Europe they may not know that Azerbaidjan is a new republic established by the political strife in eastern Europe in the expectation that it will act as a political and military buffer for some of the great nations.

The inhabitants of Azerbaidjan are Persians, Armerians, Kurds, Tartar-Turks and Arabs, whose valleys are verltable garden spots. It ranks in statistics as one of the most productive spots in all Persia, but young readers will find their chief interest in the fact that it contains Mount Ararat, which gave Noah his first shelter, according to the accepted namative. The erection of Azerbaidjan as a buffer state brings the remote past and the immediate present together in a way which may also awaken the interest of those who have moved past the years of youthful curiosity.-Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Merely a Good Story.

Wars produce many stories of fiction, some of which the oftener they are told the more they are believed to be true. The Civil war was no exception to this rule, and the story of the apple tree is one of these fictions based on a slight foundation of fact. There was, indeed, an apple orchard on one side of the hill occupied by the Confederate forces. Running diagonally up the hill was a wagon road, which, at one point, ran very near one of the trees, so that the wheels of the vehicles had on that side cut off the roots of the tree, leaving a little embankment. General Babcock, of my staff, reported to me that when he first met General Lee he was sitting on this embankment, with his feet in the road below, and his back resting against the tree. The story had no other foundation than that. Like many other good stories, it would be very good if it was only true.—Memoirs of Ulysses S. Grant.

Mast-Furnishing Tree.

In Canada and eastern United States the larch, a sturdy tree, which belongs to the pine family, often grows 50 or 60 feet high and is generally known as hackmatack, while in the Central states it is called tamarack. The European variety is even taller and has longer leaves which don beautiful autumn tints before falling.

On account of its long, tapering form, the tree is extremely useful for masts in sailing vessels, telegraph poles, and a variety of purposes, and. as it is common from the Arctic circle to the United States, it is easily found for the especial use for which it is adapted.

Monarchs' Pleasure Ground. A buried garden has been discovered at Poona, India. In excavating the site of an eighteenth-century palace, where a public park is to be laid out, an elaborate ancient garden was discovered. One side consists of three terraces at different levels, with foundations and reservoirs, after the fashion of the celebrated Shallmar gardens of Kashmir and Lahore. The entire system of fountains and reservoirs is connected by well-made pipes and ducts of pure copper. On the top of the plinth an enormous fountain, circular in shape, fashioned after a lotus. flower, and having over 200 jets, was

Once in Awhile Your Blood Clogs And Your Vitality Runs Down

THEN TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

You'll Pick Up Again Quickly With Plenty of Red Blood Corpuscles

Physicians nowadays take a blood test when you are run down. They count the red corpuscles in your blood. If those are too few they give you a tonic for your blood. It happens right along. They are always on the lookout for indications of weak blood.

Why? Because they know when your blood is weak your resistance to disease is low. Your vitality and energy quickly run down.

You can tell when your blook is weak. You look pale, feel tired. You are not ill, but you don't feel right. You don't want to do things. That is the time to take the well-known tonic, Pepto-Man-

Pepto-Mangan builds red blood corpuscles. Physicians have prescribed it for thirty years.

Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid and tablet form. The medicinal value is exactly the same. Take either kind you prefer. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—"Gude's." The full name, Gude's Pepto-Mangan," should be on the package. - Advertisement.

TAKE IT EASY IN THEATER

Japanese Customs That Seem Odd to Those Accustomed to the Formalities of the West.

Japan must be a happy land for theatergoers, because in that land seats are not paid for-in fact there are no seats. The Japanese much prefers to squat, feeling, no doubt, much more at home in this comfortable attitude. Seats, however, are usually brought for the use of any foreigners who may be present. There are no hard and fast laws of convention. The Japanese playgoer may do as he pleases; he may eat, drink, smoke and criticize to his heart's content. Conversations are carried on, and, if they merit it, the actors are met by a storm of criticism and chaff. When a man enters the auditorium he removes his boots, and if the weather is hot, any clothing that appears to him to be superfluous. The naive frankness of the actors' prompter is rather delightful, for if an actor forgets his lines the prompter comes on the stage and, quite openly, points out to the actor where he is wrong. A boy is kept for the express purpose of walking on the stage and wiping the perspiration off the actors' faces: this duty he carries out without disturbing the even tenor of the play.

Beetle Cultivator.

Ants are not the only insects that practice the cultivation of mushrooms, although for a long time it was thought that they were the only creatures of a lower order than man that possessed the intelligence to follow such an agricultural pursuit. Bouverie, the entomologist, had found that a certain wood-boring beetle, known as the bostrychide, is as familiar with mushroom cultivation as is the species of ant of which so much has been written. Professor Bouverie discovered that the beetles in question bore holes in wood and half fill them with a prepared fungus which makes an ideal mushroom bed. The garden is carefully spawned and in course of time the mushrooms appear. In this way the beetle provides itself with a food sufficiently tender for its feeble jaws.

HAPSBURG COACH IN MOVIES

Earning 100,000 Crowns a Performance for the Government of the Austrian Republic.

Vienna.-The imperial glass coach of the Hapsburgs is now earning its keep in the movies at 100,000 crowns a performance.

The royal stables have become a burden on the republic and the eight magnificent white horses and some 400 carriages of every description are made to partly earn their keep. They are used to drive members of the assembly to and from their homes, they transport provisions from the American relief and certain of the actresses and singers of the state theater and opera still hold their contracts, providing for gratuitous use of the state car-

Many horses and carriages were sold soon after the downfall of the monarchy, but many of the gorgeous vehicles and showy horses remain unsalable. This is particularly true of the great glass and gold state coach, in the style of Louis IV., used only on great ceremonial occasions, and said to be the finest piece of coach work extant.

POLISH CONSTITUTION UNIQUE

Provides That State Shall Care for Children if Neglected by Their Parents.

London.-Poland's new constitution probably will contain a provision for care of children by the state which will make it unique, in the opinion of officials here who have seen the draft. The article reads:

"Each child deprived of parental care or who is neglected morally or materially, has the right to secure care and aid from the state. The sphere of the state's duties in this capacity will be defined separately by laws, which will foresee as well the protection of mothers who may require aid, before the birth of the child, and the protection of the child in infancy." As far as known here no constitution in the world includes such a provision.

Unpretentious Dwelling in London Houses the Real Rulers of Great Commonwealth of Nations,

For 200 years a severely plain and unpretentious three-story brick dwelling has become widely known throughout the world as Britain's central office of the diplomatic service. "No. 10 Downing street" refers to one of London's historic houses on the socalled "street of power," which nestles close to the confines of Whitehall. There have dwelt therein celebrities, such as Walpole, Pitt, Chatham, Canning, Disraeli and Gladstone. In all, no fewer than fifty ministers have lived there.

Sir George Downing, after whom the thoroughfare is named, was the son of a London barrister, a nephew of Governor Winthrop of Massachusetts colony, and a graduate of Harvard, who obtained the house as a gift from Charles II as a reward for unusual service performed by him while he was representing his country in Holland. He had emigrated to America at the age of fourteen and when he left Harvard, in 1645, a youth of twenty-one, he became an itinerant preacher in the West Indies. Shortly afterward he returned to England and became a chaplain in Colonel Okey's regiment. As a faithful Puritan, who later in life assured Charles II that he saw the error of his ways due to the principles imbibed during his stay in New England, he shortly afterward enrolled under Cromwell as a scout mas-

MANAGED DRAGON BY WIRE

Opera House Manager Had Unique Idea for the Direction of Important Stage "Property."

Our Chinese friends would be interested to learn of the way "foreign devils" control dragons.

In one of the operas produced at the Metropolitan Opera house in New York the inside of the dragon, which is made of canvas and papier-mache, consists of two small boys, who are supposed to guide the beast's movements in accordance with the music. They are rarely equal to doing that correctly, even after rehearsal. A recent performance is stated to have been given without a single stage rehearsal, since no time could be found for the preparation of the opera. It was, therefore, more than ever necessary to have the occupants of the dragon's inside kept up to their business. The stage manager decided to install a telephone in the beast. It connected with the opera house switchboard. On one end was the stage manager, and at the other were two receivers strapped to the heads of the two boys, who received from moment to moment directions as to what they should do. The dragon under the circumstances covered himself with glory.

Incredible Names.

Speaking of "burdensome" names, Stray Stories tells of one Arthur Pepper of Liverpool, England, who bestowed upon his infant daughter a name that comprised every letter in the alphabet, running from Anna to Yetty Zeno.

It seems surprising that the names of Dickens' characters, odd though they were, should be found in real life; for it was from life that many of them were taken. Some, as is known, were copied from the names of signs over business places; but that was not the novelist's only source of selection. John Forster, his biographer, found among his papers a carefully drawn list of names, with the sources from which he obtained them. Some of the names are too extravagant for anything but reality: Jolly Stick, Bill Marigold, George Muzzle, William Why, Robert Gospel, Robbin Scrubban, Sarah Goldsacks, Catherine Two, Sophia Doomsday, Rosetta Dust and Sally Gimblett .- Youth's Companion.

Do You Educate Your Children? Most parents provide for their children; some take personal care of their children; but few, indeed, are they who can be forced to take any part in the education of their children, education having become the business of schools. a factory process, turned over entirely to the public. Here and there is a sublime parent who plods doggedly over the alphabet and the algebra, getting an education for himself at this late day; but such are rare, the run of parents putting their babes into the kinincubator, while they themselves slip off the educational nest like cuckoos and cowbirds.-Dallas Lore Sharp, in Atlantic Monthly.
